CENTENNIAL MEDAL PROGRAM

On October 23, the Theology department presented to Frank J. Sheed, the noted author, lecturer and publisher, the first Centennial medal for his "distinguished contributions to Catholic publishing and education." Thus began a series of monthly presentations, emphasizing the relevance of the various disciplines represented within the College to the full life of the Christian scholar.

Throughout the Centenary year a theme has been assigned to each month and the academic department or departments concerned will honor an outstanding individual in a related field by awarding him a Centennial medal.

Each month, usually on the first Friday, a special Mass will be celebrated to ask the blessing of God on the professors and students lengaged in the activity being highlighted.

OCTOBER

Fittingly, the theme for October was "The Whole Church Is In Council." The formal participation of the students in the Council began with the Solemn Mass of the Holy Ghost, celebrated on the Friday before the opening of the Council. At this Mass a large candle blessed by Pope John XXIII, and bearing his coat of arms, was lighted.

The October medalist and his wife, Maisie Ward Sheed, founded the publishing house of Sheed and Ward in London in 1926. The American house was opened in 1933. They have published the works of such authors as Chesterton, Belloc, Alfred Noyes, and Jacques Maritain.

Sheed is the author of several books, among them Communism and Man, Theology and Sanity, and A Map of Life.

NOVEMBER

During the month of November "The Christian Teacher" was recognized and the Education department awarded the Centennial medal on November 20 to Rev. Edward T. Hughes, superintendent of schools in the Archdiocese of Philadelphia.

Father Hughes was ordained in 1947 and taught at St. James High School, Chester, and was vice-rector of Immaculate Conception Parish, Jenkintown, before becoming assistant superintendent in 1960. He was named superintendent in 1961.

After the presentation, he addressed over 200 lay teachers from parochial, private and public schools on "The Mission of the Lay Teacher."

Father Hughes called for recognition of the lay teacher's "tremendous mission" and for giving this vocation "the esteem, the prestige and the financial reward that so vital a profession demands."

He urged ". . . some positive program to lighten the agonizing financial burden of the lay teachers."

The superintendent added that "... the vitality and vigor of American Catholicism are bound up inseparably with our American Catholic schools. I do not believe American Catholicism can continue to grow and flourish, unless Catholic schools grow and flourish."

F. J. Sheed receives Centenary medal for month of October from Brother F. James, F.S.C., Chairman of the Theology department.

Brother E. James, F.S.C. presents Centenary medal for November to Rev. Edward T. Hughes. Brother G. John, F.S.C. principal of West Catholic High School and former teacher of Father Hughes looks on.

DECEMBER

The English and Fine Arts departments, during the month of December, observed "The Christian and Art" theme. The medal for the month was awarded to Daniel Rodden, '41, associate professor of English and moderator-director of the Masque since 1953.

Rodden, whose MUSIC THEATRE '62 productions of "Carousel" and "Annie Get Your Gun" won wide acclaim, is a graduate of La Salle College High School and College and earned his masters degree in speech and drama at the Catholic University, Washington, D.C. He has taught here since 1946.

He has won wide attention for his work in summer stock, appearing with the late Myron McCormick in "Teahouse of the August Moon," and directing John Dall and Brian Donlevy in "The Male Animal" and "The Country Girl," respectively. During WW II, he worked with Maurice Evans, then director of entertainment of allied troops in the Pacific. He has directed over 20 student shows at the College.

JANUARY

This month the theme: "The Christian and the Community" is being observed by the Sociology, Political Science and Pre-law departments. The Centennial medal was awarded to Judge Gerald F. Flood, of the Superior Court of Pennsylvania, on January 4.

Judge Flood, the fourth recipient of the medal, was co-founder of the Catholic Inter-racial council and one of the charter members of the Fair Employment Practices Commission.

Daniel Rodden, '41, December recipient, with Brother E. Patrick, Chairman of the English department.

CHARTER DAY: MARCH 20!

La Salle Week to be Celebrated 17th-24th

The hundredth anniversary of the charter of La Salle College will be March 20. On that day in 1863, the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania granted official recognition as a college to the small academy founded by the Brothers of the Christian Schools in St. Michael's parish, 1419 N. Second Street in Philadelphia.

The week in which "Charter Day" falls - March 17-24 - will be designated "La Salle College Week in Philadelphia" by Mayor James H. J. Tate.

Brother Daniel Bernian, F.S.C., President of the College, has announced that the week will culminate with a Pontifical Mass on Sunday, March 24, at the Cathedral of Saints Peter and Paul.

Complete plans for the various celebrations during the week will be announced shortly.

Sociologists Study

A majority of white residents in a "changing neighborhood" found their fears of integration "unrealized," it was revealed in a survey of the Oak Lane -East Germantown section of the city.

The sociology department conducted the study, entitled "A Changing Neighborhood," under a $4000 grant from the Philadelphia Foundation. Brother D. Augustine, F.S.C., chairman of the department, directed the research, which was begun last spring by 12 undergraduates majoring in sociology.

The area studied has its boundaries at Wister St. on the east, and Broad St. to the west. It borders Chelten and Godfrey Aves. on the north and south, respectively.

The report aims to tell "... what actually happens when a neighborhood is changing" and thereby "help counteract propaganda and dissipate unfounded fears." It included one-third of households in the area, a total of 486 whites and 175 colored persons.

Integration Fears "Unrealized"

Negro residents increased three times since the 1960 Census, from 524 to some 1700 (6.8% to 21.2%) of the estimated total of 6000, the report disclosed.

Nearly 60% (59.8%) of white residents, the study reveals, admitted that their fears of integration were "unrealized." "Among both races," the report states, "the highest incidence of these fears was in areas where non-whites were just starting to move in."

"When non-whites first move in," the report states, "hopes, ambitions, fears, anxieties and frustrations are intensified for both groups. Emotion precedes rationality."

Major "Fears" Listed The study lists major "fears" of whites as: "living near colored" (24.9%); property depreciation (16.2%); property damage and personal harm (17.2%), and neighborhood deterioration (13.5%).

Major "fears" of colored residents, according to the study, are: not being accepted (75.5%); personal injury (12.9%); property damage (4.9%), and disorderly conduct by whites (3.2%).

"Illegal" Real Estate Practices

"The area harbors a certain type of real estate operator," the report asserts. "This area and adjoining neighborhoods have been flooded with objectionable material. According to statements by some residents and leaders . . . some (real estate) operators engage in illegal practices in the process of buying and selling homes."

The study calls for a "scientific study of this type of real estate company" to "expose their exploitation of panicked whites and status-seeking Negroes."

"... Willingness To Stop Running"

Churches, civic and block organizations, the report stresses, are ". . . crucial to any action that may be taken to effect . . . the best possible human relationships."

"A substantial nucleus of both races," the study concludes, "have indicated a willingness to stop running from one another."

Brother D. Augustine, chairman of the Sociology department, is a native of Scranton, Pennsylvania, where he received his B.A. in 1926 from St. Thomas College—now the University of Scranton.

He received his M.A. from the Catholic University of America in 1928, returning there for his Ph.D. in 1941.

A Christian Brother for 44 years, he has been on the College faculty since 1941, becoming chairman of the Sociology department in 1948.

Brother Augustine is well remembered for his kindly guidance by many alumni who were active in student government and inter-campus politics in their undergraduate days.

For many years he was director of Student Organizations and moderator of Student Council and the campus delegation to the National Federation of Catholic College Students (N.F.C.C.S.). For the past four years, Brother Augustine has served as Regional moderator of N.F.C.C.S.

Effective September, 1963, tuition and faculty salaries will be increased, faculty teaching hours will be reduced, and construction will have begun on a classroom building.

Tuition and fees will be increased by $125 per academic year. Science students will be assessed $975 and arts and business students $925. Residence fees will be raised by $50 to $850.

Brother Daniel Bernian, F.S.C., said that a major portion of the increase will be devoted to raising the salary scale of faculty members with ranks of instructor through full professor. Teaching hours will also be reduced, he added.

Also announced were plans for construction of a $1.5 million classroom building and, upon completion of the latter, erection of a new student chapel on the campus. Ground breaking is expected next summer.

"Tuition increases are justified," Brother Daniel said, "only as a last resort and, at La Salle, we have used such means only when no other answer is available.

"No student is particularly happy about an increase in costs," he added, "any more than a consumer is pleased by increased prices of products. Yet, when increases go directly into faculty salaries, the students do benefit."

A best selling author, a Pulitzer Prize playwright, and an art gallery director received honorary degrees at the annual fall honors convocation on October 28.

Receiving the honorary degree of doctor of fine arts were novelist Katherine Anne Porter, dramatist George Kelly, and Dr. John Walker, director of the National Gallery of Art, Washington, D. C.

Mr. Philip Scharper, American editor of Sheed and Ward Publishing Co., delivered the convocation address.

Sponsoring the recipients for their degrees were Brother G. Francis, F.S.C., assistant professor of English, for Miss Porter; Dr. John Guischard, chairman of the modern languages department, for Dr. Walker, and Charles V. Kelly, associate professor of English, for Mr. Kelly, the sponsor's uncle.

Miss Porter's first full length novel Ship of Fools headed the best seller lists in recent months.

Kelly won the 1925 Pulitzer Prize for his play, Craig's Wife, and also wrote

The Fatal Weakness. Dr. Walker has been director of the Gallery since 1956.

Dr. Mortimer Adler, philosopher and author, delivered the first in a series of Centennial Lectures on October 22.

In his afternoon lecture, Dr. Adler discussed "Questions That Science Cannot Answer," and in the evening his topic was "Education in An Industrialized Democracy."

Dr. Adler, perhaps best known as associate editor of the Great Books of the Western World series, was professor of philosophy at the University of Chicago for 22 years before assuming his present post as director of the Institute of Philosophic Research in 1952.

He is the author of more than a dozen books, among them What Man Has Made of Man (1938); A Dialectic of Morals (1941); How to Think About War and Peace (1944), and his two most recent books (1958), The Capitalist Manifesto and The Revolution of Education.

In the second Centenary lecture on December 5, Senator Eugene J. McCarthy (D.-Minn.) spoke on "Liberalism as a Dynamic Force In American Politics."

Deploring the use of the word "liberal" as a noun, he identified liberalism in this century with the first two Roosevelt administrations.

"Principally," he said, "it involved political and economic changes which were the results of a response to urgent practical demands, rather than a fulfillment or an advancement of an ideology or a doctrinaire theory of political, economic or social organization."

He noted some falling away of popular support for liberal programs. This he attributed to general economic well being and the fact that much of the original program of the liberals has been adopted and accepted. "Liberals have at times forgotten how much remains to be done," he added.

There are three principal areas in which the Senator feels liberal judgment must be applied: economic policy, human rights and international policy.

He urged "positive action to stimulate economic growth," and asserted "our welfare program falls far short of reasonable tandards." He asked enactment of a Fair Imployment Practices Act, and immeiate action in housing, education, health asurance, and increased unemployment ompensation benefits.

"The times are moving too quickly for he conservatives," Sen. McCarthy said. Many of them are still shaking their eads and apologizing for having accepted he New Deal, while others are busy conratulating themselves for having suported the modest advances of the first lisenhower administration."

"Our position of power and responsiility in the world requires a liberal reponse," he claimed.

"The liberal is normally progressive villing to advocate and accept change." his he regarded as a safe general posiion "since no individual and no human astitution can ever claim perfection. The ossibility of improvement is always aresent."

The Smothers Brothers, folk-singingomedians, were the featured attraction it an evening of entertainment and dancing November 10 in the College Union.

The Smothers Brothers, who describe heir act as "folk singing with a touch of omedy," gained national recognition by oppearances on the Jack Parr Show. Ed agan and the Sensations provided the nusic for the Brothers' shows.

"Mark Twain Tonight," an evening of intertainment by Hal Holbrook, was presented on November 19.

The program consisted of monologues erived from Twain's essays, fiction, and utobiographical works.

Dame Judith Anderson, one of the forenost actresses of the American stage, performed in a College-sponsored program November 29 in Girls' High audiorium, Broad St. and Olney Ave.

The program featured Dame Judith and supporting actor William Roerick in scenes from "Medea" and "Lady Macbeth," two of Miss Anderson's most famous roles.

Susan Starr, brilliant young pianist who last year won second place in the Second International Tchaikovsky competition in Moscow, gave a recital Norember 9 in the College Union Theatre.

Miss Starr played Bach's Prelude and Fugue in b flat minor, Schubert's Sonata n a minor, Chopin's Ballade in a flat najor, and Liszt's Mephisto Waltz.

The debating team on October 17 hosted the debators of Oxford University (England) in the College Union Theatre.

William H. Murray, '64, Finance major, and Frank J. Battaglia, '63, English major comprised the La Salle team. William D. Madel and John B. W. McDonnell represented Oxford.

Two guest stars highlighted the Masque's Centenary Drama Festival production of Thornton Wilder's "The Matchmaker," which ran eight-performances in December.

The initial Drama Festival presentation was directed by Dan Rodden, director of the Masque and associate professor of English, and Sidney MacLeod was technical director.

Frances Sternhagen, who appeared in Broadway productions of "Viva Madison Avenue!" and "Great Day in the Morning," portrayed Mrs. Levi in the production of Wilder's farce. Mary Jane Milly was seen as Mrs. Mulloy, the second feminine role in the production.

Dennis Cunningham, who won praise as Mr. Snow in the MUSIC THEATRE '62 production of "Carousel" last summer, played Horace Vandergelder, the lead role opposite Miss Sternhagen.

The Masque's February production this year will be Arthur Miller's Pulitzer prize winning play, "Death of a Salesman." It will run Sunday to Sunday, February 17 to 24.

Sidney J. MacLeod, Jr., will direct. Pat Cronin will portray Willie Loman.

MacLeod, a graduate of St. Mary's of Winona, Minn., received his M.F.A. from Catholic University. He won praise for his direction of "Richard III" last year.

Cronin is well known to Masque fans for his leading roles in "High Button Shoes," "Take Me Along" and "Inherit the Wind."

Rain dampened the 7th annual "Tap-Off" Rally on November 18. The scheduled parade and band tournament had to be cancelled because of the downpour, but the varsity-freshman game was played (varsity won 81-69) and the "1962-63 Basketball Queen" was crowned at the dance in the evening.

Claudette Marie Cohen of Harcum Junior College was crowned this season's queen by outgoing queen Kathy Brandal of Havertown, Pa. Miss Cohen makes her home in Margate, New Jersey.

International debate with a team from Oxford University. La Salle College team of Murray and Battaglia listen to Oxford's John B. W. McDonnell. Moderator of debate is Charles V. Kelly.

Writers' Conference guest lecturer Riley Hughes is backed up by panelists Joseph Beatty, Joseph P. Coogan, '49, Thomas Adams, '58 and Thomas J. McCauley, '58.

GRANTS

The College has received two new grants and a third award has been increased by $1000.

The National Science Foundation has again granted the college funds to conduct, a Summer Science Training Program for Secondary School Students, under the direction of Dr. John S. Penny, chairman of the Biology department.

The NSF grant, which totals $7,600, is similar to a summer program grant received by the college in 1961, when some 20 outstanding high school science students took part in an eight-week program also conducted by the Biology department.

The summer programs aim to identify and encourage superior high school students, who have excellent potential of becoming scientists and to accelerate their academic development.

Also announced was an Atomic Energy Commission Grant of $5,290 to the college's Physics department, which will use the award to acquire nuclear instrumentation equipment, according to Bro. E. Mark, F.S.C., Ph.D., chairman of the department.

The Christian R. and Mary F. Lindback Foundation has increased to $3000 its annual grant to the college.

The award, which last year totaled $2000 is given annually to faculty members for "distinguished teaching." Five professors have been selected for the bonor over the past two years.

The Foundation makes the awards to "encourage the highest possible excellence in the teaching profession."

CAREER CONFERENCE

The sixth annual Career Conference, sponsored by the college's Placement Bureau, was held on December 5 in the College Theatre.

Two talks, followed by audience participation discussion, highlighted the program. Rudolph H. Weber, assistant vice president for personnel at the First Pennsylvania Banking and Trust Co., discussed "What Does the Employer Look For in the Interview?" and Bernard Rafferty, mid-Atlantic district sales manager for Bauer and Black Co., spoke on "What Information Should the Student Expect From the Interview?" George R. Swoyer, chairman of the marketing department, was program chairman.

A panel of 14 representatives of leading area business and industrial firms advised the more than 500 seniors present on employment prospects in their respective fields.

Among companies represented were International Business Machines, Sears Roebuck, Proctor and Gamble, Insurance Co. of North America, Acme Stores, Allstate and Travelers insurance companies, and National Biscuit Co.

R.O.T.C. MASS

More than 1400 ROTC cadets on December 4 paraded from the campus to the Church of the Holy Child, where the 11th annual Mass of St. Barbara, patroness of artillerymen, was celebrated.

To accommodate the cadets — a record number in the 12 year history of the ROTC program — two Masses were celebrated simultaneously, one in the main church, a second in the chapel.

The Rev. Mark Heath, O.P., delivered the sermon, and the Rev. Clement Burns, O.P., was celebrant in the main church. In the chapel, the Rev. Ferrer Halligan, O.P., was the celebrant, and the Rev. John C. McCarthy, O.P., gave the sermon.

The annual War Dead Memorial Service, which honors alumni who gave their lives in the two world wars and in Korea, followed the two Masses.

EUROPEAN TOUR

The College Union has announced plans for its second European tour this summer. Highly successful two years ago, many new features are planned this year.

The tour will leave Philadelphia via a chartered BOAC turbo-prop jet on June 19 and return, via the same means, on July 16.

The plane will land in London and return from Paris. From London the trip will divide into two groups. One will tour Central Europe; the other, the Scandinavian countries.

Round trip for the Central European tour will cost $725.00; for the Scandinavian trip; $795.00. The cost includes first class hotels with private rooms and baths, tips, taxes, sightseeing, entertainment in London and Paris, and special dinners.

For more information write John H. Veen, Director, College Union, La Salle College, Philadelphia 41.

WICKLEM ELECTED

William J. Wicklem, '64, has been elected president of region three of the American Association of College Unions.

An alumnus of Cardinal Dougherty High School, Wicklem is vice chairman of the College Union Board. Region III is comprised of more than 30 colleges and universities in five eastern states. He is an Economics major.

ALUMNI HOMECOMING

The basketball game with St. Joseph's College has again been designated "homecoming" game by the Alumni Association's Board of Directors.

The game will be played on Saturday, February 23 as the second game of a double header, which will see Villanova take on Xavier of Ohio in the opener.

This year the winner will be awarded the Alumni trophy, co-sponsored by the Alumni Associations of both schools.

A post-game party is being planned by a committee of the Alumni Board of Directors. Details will be announced.

CHESS TOURNEY

The National Intercollegiate Team Chest Championships were held here Dec. 26-29. Brooklyn College topped a field of 28 teams, with the host team finishing 15th.

LITURGICAL MEETING

A three-day meeting of the Board of Directors of the National Catholic Liturgical Conference was held on campus Dec. 27-29.

The Rev. Gerard Sloyan, president of N.C.L.C., and 35 experts on the liturgy of the Mass planned the agenda for the national N.C.L.C. meeting in August. The national meeting, to be held in Philadelphia, will implement decisions by the Vatican Council.

Among board of directors of the National Catholic Liturgical Conference, which met Dec. 26-29, are (from left) the Most Rev. Charles Buswell, bishop of Pueblo, Colo., the Rev. Frank Norris, program chairman for national conclave in August, and Rev. Gerard Sloyan, president of NCLC.

FACULTY NEWS

A chapter of the American Association of University Professors was formed in November at the College during a meeting on the campus.

Dr. E. Russell Naughton, chairman of the Philosophy department, was elected president of the new chapter, the third in the state at a Catholic college. There are 40 charter members.

Dr. Robert J. Courtney, associate professor of Political Science, was elected vice president, and Joseph P. Mooney, assistant professor of Economics, is secretary-treasurer.

Brother Francis Emery, F.S.C., assistant professor of English and dean of the evening division, compiled an anthology entitled "Twentieth Century Writers," recently released by Macmillan. Included are 59 works, each preceded by a biography of the author.

Two psychology professors have been elected to president-elect posts in professional organizations.

Dr. Thomas N. McCarthy, director of the Counseling Center and an associate professor of psychology, is presidentelect of the American Catholic Psychological Association for 1962-63. Member of the college staff since 1952, Dr. McCarthy is also consultant psychologist to nine different orders of priests, brothers and sisters.

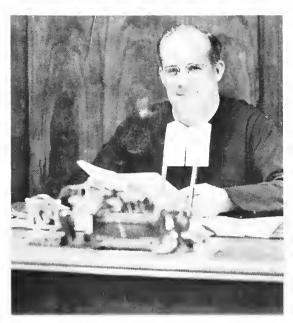

Dr. John Rooney has been elected to the same post in the Personnel and Guidance Association of Greater Philadelphia. Dr. Rooney, who joined La Salle's staff in 1947, is now chairman of the college's psychology department. He formerly directed the counseling center.

Dr. Ivan L. Rudnytsky recently taught, at the Cheltenham Township Adult School, two ten weeks courses: "Aspects of Russian History" and "Totalitarian Movements in the Twentieth Century."

On December 5, Dr. Cleary presented a lecture on "Soviet Education — Theory and Practice" in Student Union Room 301, under auspices of the Union Forum Committee. On December 12, he addressed the Kistler Honor Society of Rosemont College on the subject of "American Ism's and Political Action." He gave the same lecture at Newman Hall on November 13, under the sponsorship of the Alumni Newman Club of the Greater Philadelphia Area.

President's Message

THE ALUMNI SURVEY

Bro. Daniel Bernian, F.S.C.

In November we sent a letter to each alumnus of the College, and enclosed with it a simple questionnaire to be filled out and returned to us. No one realizes more than a college president what a nuisance such requests for "endorsed surveys" can become; but we feel that we have a responsibility to keep ourselves informed about our La Salle men, their plans and achievements, family status, and so on. Obviously, we must depend on the alumni themselves for the completeness and accuracy of this information.

We are gratified that so many of you have taken the time to respond to our request. Let me urge those who have not yet done so to fill out the survey form and send it in to us. If you have misplaced it (and I know how easily that can happen!) please send a card to the Alumni Office requesting that another be sent to you.

Information received from our Alumni is important to us for several reasons. First of all, our understandable interest and pride in our graduates does not end when they leave our campus; in a very real sense, it intensifies. Perhaps more important, the suggestions of our Alumni are of immense value to us in our continuing self-evaluation, our constant quest for excellence. No one is in a better position to be of help to us in this great task than those who know us best, our graduates.

This information about our graduates is of great interest and assistance, not only to the Alumni Office, but to the Bureau of Placement, the Office of Public Relations, the News Bureau, and the Development Office as well.

We are sure that a complete report based on this information will be of great interest to the members of our Alumni and their families. It will be released a little later in the year.

The surveys received so far indicate that our ALUMNI MAGAZINE has kept the majority of our graduates well informed about the activities, services, and progress of La Salle. We note with great satisfaction the impressive number of our graduates who have earned advanced academic degrees since undergraduate days. Quite a few expressed the hope that the College might become a university, and many have expressed a desire to have graduate courses offered at La Salle, during the day, and more especially, in the Evening Division.

Some questions and comments indicate a certain degree of unfamiliarity, among some graduates, with some of the services offered to Alumni by the College. While the Placement Office, for example, makes special efforts to be of service to the current Senior Class, it is always ready to help any member of the Alumni as well. The Library, too, remains your Library: we will be happy to issue a borrower's card, free of charge, to any alumnus. There are other areas, certainly, where we will be delighted to be of service. The surveys you return will help us to increase and improve such service to you.

It was gratifying, of course, to learn from the questionnaires already received that so many of you have expressed approval of what we here at the College are doing, planning to do, and attempting to do. Many were good enough to say that the question should be, not what the College can do for our graduates, but rather, the reverse. Attitudes like that are most encouraging indeed, to the Brothers, the Faculty, and the Administration.

Again, my sincere thanks to those of you who have sent in answers to our request for information. I sincerely hope that by the publication-date of our next ALUMNI MAGAZINE, we shall have heard from all of you.

May God shower abundant blessings on you and your families during 1963!

Senior co-captain Tony Abbott goes in for driving layup against Bowling Green as Nate Thurmond (42) and La Salle's George Sutor (12) wait for the rebound that never came. Abbott scored 20 points to spark La Salle upset and fifth place finish in tourney.

After a spectacular comeback in the Quaker City Tournament, coach Dudey Moore's Explorers went into the new year and the roughest part of their schedule with a 6-3 record. Facing La Salle's sometimes spectacular, sometimes erratic basketballers were games with undefeated Miami (Fla.), powerful Canisius, stubborn Western Kentucky, and, of course, the always tough Big Five and Middle Atlantic Conference rivals. The Explorers went into 1963 leading the MAC with a 3-0 record as Quaker City Tourney champion St. Joseph's (homecoming opponent, Feb. 23) loomed as their main obstacle for the conference title and an appearance in the NCAA post-season tournament. Sharpshooting junior Frank Corace, of Drexel Hill, Pa., was leading the team in scoring with 149 points for an 18.6 average. Rapidly-improving soph George Sutor was the top rebounder (105) and second in scoring with 137, a 17.1 average. Senior co-captain Bill Raftery, Kearny, N. J., also appeared on his way to a complete comeback after missing most of the 1961-62 season with a ruptured disc. Raftery was averaging 14.3 points a game.

Creighton 91, La Salle 72

Raftery (21 points) and Corace (18) were the only Explorers to show offensive power as the highly-rated Nebraska Bluejays rushed to a 44-36 halftime lead. La Salle managed to tie it once in the second half, but Creighton's depth was too much for the Explorers to overcome in the opener for both teams before 5,647 disappointed fans at the Palestra. All American Paul Silas sparked Creighton with a record 30 rebounds and 18 points as the Explorers were outhustled off the boards, 70-40.

La Salle 95, Lafayette 59

Sutor showed why he is one of the nation's outstanding sophomores by coming off the bench and scoring eight points in his initial 38 seconds of action to spark runaway in Explorers' first conference and road game. Corace took scoring honors with 24; Sutor had 20 and Raftery, 16. Senior co-captain Tony Abbott, of Chester, Pa., played an outstanding defensive game and scored 14.

Niagara 79, La Salle 76

The Explorers played possibly their best game of the year in Niagara Falls, rallying from huge deficits time and again. Raftery and center Walt Sampson, a 6'8" junior from Houston, Texas, both were lost on questionable fouls after playing tremendously; Abbott suffered a severe cut near his right eye and had to leave the game, and the breaks just went against La Salle. Once Corace was high scorer with 24, followed by Raftery's 19 and Sutor's 17.

La Salle 85, Lehigh 34

Sparked by Sutor's 25 points (11 for 14 from the field), the Explorers had a cakewalk after blitzing into a 50-12 half-time lead at the Palestra. Corace suffered a dislocated left index finger in the early minutes and was removed from the first game in which he ever was held scoreless in his career. Raftery had 13, and talented subs Harry Carpenter, Philadelphia, and John Hart, Hudson, N. Y., had 11 and 10, respectively. Carpenter also grabbed 17 rebounds.

La Salle 67, Albright 57

The tough Lions gave La Salle quite a tussle in their home court in Reading, Pa., but Sampson came through with 18 points and 17 rebounds to help spark a late rally. Sutor and Cerace had 14; Raftery chipped in with 12, most of them after Albright had taken a 30-29 halftime lead.

La Salle 105, Bucknell 55

In another MAC mismatch at the Palestra, the Explorers made 51.8 of their shots and had an easy time after leading 45-20 at intermission. Coach Moore was able to dress only eight men as subs Gene Park and Joe Cunnane, Philadelphia, were both recovering from early-season injuries; Abbott was out with the flu (after playing in 52 consecutive games), and outstanding soph frontcourt prospect, Al Tezsla, of Trenton, N. J., was nursing an injured ankle. Corace had 23; Sampson 21, and Sutor 19 to spark the runaway.

QUAKER CITY TOURNAMENT Brigham Young 84, La Salle 73

In one of La Salle's bitterest defeats in years, the unheralded Cougars from Utah came back from a 16 point deficit to win in the last four minutes. The victory sparked Brigham Young all the way to the finals against St. Joseph's. Corace had 22 points and Sutor grabbed 23 rebounds for the Explorers' only bright moments as 6,540 Palestra viewers sat in stunned silence.

La Salle 80, Delaware 64

Walt Sampson, La Salle's 6'8" junior center, grabs one of his record-setting 24 rebounds in Quaker City Tournament consolation game as Delaware's Pete Cloud (40), La Salle's Frank Corace (32) and Tony Abbott (right background) watch. Sampson's record for a single tournament game lasted 28 hours before being broken the next night by Bowling Green All American Nate Thurmond, who grabbed 25 rebounds.

eld a commanding lead after the six inute mark of the consolation game. ampson set a Tournament record of 24 abounds that was to be broken by one in next night by Bowling Green All merican Nate Thurmond. Corace and utor had 24 and 20, respectively, and aftery added 14.

la Salle 74, Bowling Green 67 (overtime)

In the game billed by most pre-tourney xperts as the probable final, La Salle rabbed fifth place by upsetting one of e nation's top-ranking teams with a air of comebacks in the second half and vertime session. The Explorers trailed 3-34 at the half but rallied to lead by even with only four minutes remaining. owling Green, sparked by Thurmond's I points and 25 rebounds, tied in the last in seconds, but La Salle prevailed 12-5 in vertime. Abbott played another fine efensive game and had 20 points as d Corace. Sutor, Sampson, Raftery nd Tezsla did outstanding rebounding gainst the taller Ohioans.

The College's soccer team may have affered through the worst season in a school's history, but things are defitely looking up for next year.

Only two starters on this year's squad at tied one and lost ten will graduate June, and coach Joe Smith has some lented freshman ready to step into the arting lineup.

Of course, Smith may have a problem nding adequate replacements for coptain Gordon Gray, the team's leading orer and Adam Slomiana, an outstandg center-forward for three seasons oth are due to graduate.

Gray, who was moved up front to add ore offensive punch to the starting neup after playing in the backfield for seasons, led the team with six goals 11 games. Slomiana scored once, but ayed good all-around soccer.

The outstanding returnees for next ason include Bill Donaghy, an everastling forward who scored four goals r the team's second highest total, and GAMES ON T.V.

Four Palestra basketball games will be levised this season by WFIL-TV. Two volve the Explorers: LCS-Manhattan January 11, and LSC-Duquesne on sbruary 20.

WFIL Radio is broadcasting the entire puble-header schedule from the Palestra.

Bucky Durney, Frank Degnan, Maurice Cox with Bob Kennedy, who all scored once. Durney, one of the smallest men in college soccer (5'3", 125 lbs.), injured his leg and missed the final half of the season. He should be physically fit for his inside right position next year.

Other veterans who should help produce some victories next year include fullbacks Mark Gallagher, Al Cimino and Chris Nacrelli, halfbacks John Crockett and co-captain Al Ruppert, forward Don Dunn and goalie Andy Quinn, who has developed into one of the finest defensemen in the area.

The Explorers, playing one of their toughest schedules ever, lost to such soccer powerhouses as Temple, St. Joseph's and Drexel, and salvaged a scoreless tie with Muhlenberg.

The swimming team should be improved this year, but it's up to the sophomores to determine how far the Explorers go in the Middle Atlantic Conference Championships.

That was the word from veteran Coach Joe Kirk as the team prepared for its opening meet at Temple Jan. 5. Last year, the Explorers struggled to a 6-4 record (their worst since 1953) and a third place finish in the MAC title event.

"We are not really deep enough," says Kirk. "But if our veterans live up to their potential and the newcomers pull a few surprises, we have an outside shot for the title. Bucknell and West Chester appear to be the teams to beat, though."

The outstanding Explorer veteran is Bruce Trainor, a junior from Lower Merion High, who took MAC individual titles in the 50 and 100 yard freestyle races a year ago, setting school and conference records in the process.

Kirk is also counting on a comeback by captain Phil Ranieri, the former Monsignor Bonner star who slumped a little last year after winning the MAC 100 and 200 yard butterfly titles as a sophomore.

Don Walheim, a junior who impressed in the backstroke and freestyle last year; Mike Kennedy, a promising diver from Cardinal Dongherty and freestyler Pat Hogan, Father Judge, are the other veterans who should be in the thick of indiyidual conference title honors.

The Explorers have a host of promising sophomores, but the best appear to be freestylers Ken Buyarski from Dieruff High (Bethlehem) and Bill Conroy of Monsignor Bonner. Conroy will also compete in the individual medley events.

Charlie Trowbridge and Joe Dieterle, both from St. Joseph's Prep, should help in the backstroke and breaststroke, respectively.

Other sophomores include George Schuncke, a breaststroke competitor from Calvert Hall, Baltimore, and John Becher, a freestyler and individual medley man from La Salle High. Rounding out the squad are senior freestylers Dan McDonlell and Gerry Burrows, both from Monsignor Bonner.

La Salle's cross country season was not the greatest success team-wise, but junior harrier Paul Minehan caused enough individual excitement to span a decade. And teammate Larry Patterson wasn't far behind.

Minehan, a former star at Philadelphia's Cardinal Dougherty High, captured the Middle Atlantic Conference individual title and IC4A College division championship to pace the Explorers to fourth and fifth places, respectively, and cap the greatest individual year ever enjoyed by one of coach Frank Wetzler's harriers. He set a new course-meet record of 23:40.4 in the MAC's at Cobbs Creek Park.

As a team, La Salle finished with a 2-5 dual meet record after losing its first four to Penn, West Chester, St. Joseph's and Villanova. The Explorers then defeated Lafayette and Temple and bowed to St. John's (N. Y.) before competing in the MAC and IC4A championships.

During the regular season, Minehan took first place in the Temple and St. John's meets; shared the top spot with Patterson against St. Joseph's and finished in a four-way tie with Patterson, and sophomores Pete Volk and Mike Costello.

Patterson, a junior from Briarcliff, N. Y., took first place in the Penn and West Chester meets (setting a Ram course record); tied Minehan for two other top spots, and finished strong thirds in the MAC and IC4A championships.

Volk and junior Tommy McDonnell were both plagued by illness and injuries throughout the season. With this pair at top form to go along with Minehan, Patterson and promising vets such as Rich Bernhardt, Frank Walsh and Phil Kelly, things are definitely looking up for next year.

Charter Week

Distinguished guests at the Bellevue on March 18 included Centenary Chairman Gov. David L. Lawrence, who brought a message from President Kennedy, Bro. Daniel Bernian, F.S.C., College President, and the Most Reverend John J. Krol, Archbishop of Philadelphia.

The Centennial year reached a climax with Charter Week—March 17-24—commemorating the hundredth anniversary of the charter granted the College by the Commonwelath of Pennsylvania on March 20, 1863.

Proclaimed "La Salle College Week in Philadelphia" by Mayor James H. J. Tate, the week included a formal civic dinner, a special honors convocation, and a Pontifical Mass of Thanksgiving.

An eight page magazine supplement appeared at the start of the week—on Sunday, the 17th—in both the Philadelphia Bulletin and Inquirer telling Philadelphians about La Salle and its accomplishments.

The week's festivities then officially opened on Monday evening with a dinner at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel. Guests included the Most Reverend John J. Kroll, D.D., Archbishop of Philadelphia, who gave the invocation and the blessing, the Hon. David L. Lawrence, Mayor Tate, and Brother D. John, F.S.C., Provincial of the Baltimore district of the Brothers and Chairman of the Board of Managers.

Doctor Francis J. Braceland, Class of '26, prominent Yale University psychiatrist, was toastmaster. The distinguished alumnus, dishcharging his duty with wit and warmth, guided the evening's program to its successful conclusion.

Archbishop Krol delivered greetings from Pope John XXIII, who conveyed his "cordial felicitations" and "Paternal Apostolic Benediction." The Archbishop added his own best wishes and expressed his appreciation for La Salle's helping him discharge his responsibility.

The audience of over 800 then heard presidential assistant, former Governor Lawrence read a congratulatory message from President Kennedy.

Congratulatory messages were also received from Gov. William W. Scranton, Pennsylvania; Gov. Richard J. Hughes, New Jersey, and Gov. Elbert N. Carvel, Delaware; Brother Nicet Joseph, F.S.C., superior general of the Christian Brothers; Brother C. Henry, F.S.C., U. S. Superior general; and the Philadelphia City Council. Councilman Robert B. Winkleman, Jr., Class of '44, read the City Council resolution.

The principal address was delivered by Brother Daniel Bernian, F.S.C., Presi-

Singled out for long and distinguished service to the College were Brother E. Anselm, F.S.C., Brother E. John, F.S.C., Doctor Roland Holroyd and Brother G. Joseph, F.S.C.

Also on the dais were Rev. Mark Heath, Chaplain of the College, and the four vice-presidents: Brother Gavin Paul, F.S.C., Brother Fidelian, F.S.C., John L. McCloskey and Joseph J. Sprissler, who was also chairman of the dinner.

were Msgrs. Thomas F. McNally and Charles B. McGinley; past president Bro. Gregorian Paul, F.S.C.; La Salle High School principal Bro. E. Francis, F.S.C.; industrialists John F. Connelly and Joseph Schmitz, Jr., bank president William F. Kelly, attorney Joseph B. Quinn, and Alumni President James I. Gillespie.

On Wednesday afternoon, at a special Charter Day honors convocation, honorary degrees were conferred on three government officials, a bishop, an industrialist, a labor leader, and two scholars.

The Honorable William W. Scranton, Governor of Pennsylvania, received an honorary doctor of laws degree and delivered the principal address on the occasion.

The Most Reverend Gerald V. McDevitt, D.D., Auxiliary Bishop of Philadelphia, was also awarded on LL.D. and presided at the convocation.

Other honorary degree recipients were Mayor James H. J. Tate; Charles E. Beck, president of Philco Corp.; U. S. Treasurer Kathryn Granahan; Joseph T. Kelley, secretary-treasurer of Philadelphia AFL-CIO; and Dr. Stephen Kuttner, canon lawyer of Catholic University, all of whom received the degree doctor of laws. Sir Hugh Taylor, president of the Woodrow Wilson Foundation recevied a doctor of science degree.

Governor Scranton in his address called La Salle and other private colleges "the backbone of higher education" in the state.

Alluding to the battle against unemployment and economic stagnation, Scranton emphasized the need for a strong educational system.

He outlined his hopes for a Council of higher Education which would prepare a master plan for higher education in Pennsylvania. He also expressed the hope that the state constitution would be changed to make it lawful for the state government to sponsor a program of loan-scholarships for college students.

Following Governor Scranton's remarks "For the Commonwealth," Dr. Roland Holroyd, senior faculty member, spoke, "For the College."

Dr. Holroyd delighted his audience with his reminiscences and emphasized, "the prevailing thought through the years . . . has been SERVICE to God and to the community."

Dr. Holroyd:

"we could not at that time afford expensive research equipment, consequently we had to specialize in teaching."

"The art of teaching consists in making a student want to learn. Perhaps it is difficult, but it can be done. The familiar aphorism that 'you can lead a horse to water, but you can't make him drink' is untrue. You can make a horse drink if you salt him first. So the student's interest must be salted."

Climaxes...

On Laetare Sunday — March 24 — the week-long celebration was concluded appropriately with a Pontifical Mass of Thanksgiving and the unveiling and bless-of an historic marker at the birthplace of the College.

The Most Reverend John J. Krol, D.D., J.C.D., Archbishop of Philadelphia, celebrated the Mass at the Cathedral; the Alumni Association installed the commemorative tablet in St. Michael's parish afterwards.

The Most Rev. Gerald V. McDevitt, D.D., Auxiliary Bishop of Philadelphia, in his sermon extolled the College's first century of service as a "source of pride to priests, religious and laity of this archdiocese."

"La Salle College," the Bishop said, "has attained its present status and has renewed itself repeatedly these one hundred years, because it was founded on a great idea, as valid today, as relevant to today's world, as it was to Lincoln's, when it welcomed its first class of freshmen."

As long as it continues to thrive, he concluded, faithful to its beliefs and purposes, "there is still hope for society."

The Centennial Mass, a Pontifical Mass of Thanksgiving, was celebrated by His Excellency John J. Krol, Archbishop of Philadelphia at the Cathedral of Saints Peter and Paul on Sunday, March 24.

Rev. Msgr. Edward T. Hughes, superintendent of archdiocesan schools, and the Rt. Rev. Msgr., Charles B. McGinley, pastor of Holy Child Parish, each of whom were the deacons of honor. and the Very Rev. William F. Maloney, S. J., presidents of Villanova University and St. Joseph's College, respectively, were deacon and subdeacon. The Rev. James F. Connelly, secretary to the Archbishop, was the master of ceremonies.

Over 300 Brothers attended the Mass and received Communion from the Archbishop. Brothers, lay faculty, alumni, students, families and friends of La Salle joined in the singing of the Mass.

Later in the afternoon, the bronze commemorative tablet, affixed to what is now the parish hall in St. Michael's (1445 N. Second Street), was presented to the pastor, the Rev. Edwin L. Gallagher, by alumni president James I. Gillespie.

Father Gallagher blessed the marker and reviewed a little parish history for the assembled alumni and parishioners.

"St. Michael's was celebrating its silver jubilee," Father said, when the Brothers were invited to teach there in 1858.

Five years later, the little academy was chartered as La Salle College.

Rev. Edwin L. Gallagher blesses the commemorative tablet installed in St. Michael's parish by the Alumni Association. Shown with Father Gallagher are James I. Gillespie, Alumni President, who presented the tablet on behalf of the Association, and Rev. Edmund Rafferty, assistant at St. Michael's.

Recent Medal Recipients

The monthly presentations of Centennial medals continued. Begun last October, the program emphasizes the relevance of the various disciplines within the College to the full life of the Christian scholar.

A theme has been assigned to each month and the academic department or departments concerned honor an outstanding individual in a related field by awarding him a Centennial medal.

As reported in the last issue, (Vol. 7, No. 2), the October medal for Theology was given to Frank J. Sheed, author, lecturer and publisher; the November medal for Education was presented to Monsignor Edward T. Hughes, the superintendent of schools in the Philadelphia archdiocese; the December medal for English and Fine Arts was awarded to Daniel Rodden, '41, associate professor of English and moderator-director of the Masque; and the January medal for Community Welfare (Sociology, Political Science and Pre-Law departments) was presented to Judge Gerald F. Flood of the Superior Court of Pennsylvania.

FEBRUARY

The theme for the month of February, "The Christian and the Economy," encompassed the departments of Economics, Accounting, Finance, Marketing and General Business. The fifth medal in the series was presented to Dr. Karl R. Bopp, President of the Federal Reserve Bank of Philadelphia.

The medalist was honored for his "distinguished contribution to the public welfare." Dr. James J. Henry, chairman of the Finance department made the presentation.

Dr. Bopp joined the staff of the Federal Reserve Bank in Philadelphia as director of research in 1941, and was vice president in charge of research when he was named president in 1958. He taught economics at the University of Missouri, his alma mater, from 1931 to 1941.

MARCH

In March, the month assigned to "the Christian Philosopher," the sixth Centennial medal was awarded to James F. Anderson, Ph.D., professor of Philosophy at Villanova University.

Dr. E. Russell Naughton, chairman of the department, presented the medal to Dr. Anderson for his "many contributions to scholarship in Scholastic Philosophy."

Dr. Anderson, who joined the Villanova staff in 1959, has written, edited or translated five books on Scholastic Philosophy, the most recent An Introduction to the Metaphysics of St. Thomas in 1953. He has also taught at Loyola (Chicago), Notre Dame and St. Anselm's College (N. H.). He earned his bachelor's degree at the University of Virginia, and his master's and Ph.D. degrees at the University of Toronto.

APRIL

The Psychology department is observing the theme for April: "The Christian and the Individual." The Centennial medal for the month will be presented on April 17 to George Christian Anderson, Director of the Academy of Religion and Mental Health. Dr. John Rooney, chairman of the Psychology department will make the presentation.

Educated at Pennsylvania, Oxford and Columbia Universities, the recipient was ordained to the ministry of the Protestant-Episcopal Church in 1933 and has served as rector of various Episcopal Churches in the Philadelphia area, including Trinity Church in Swarthmore, Pa. from 1942 to 1950.

Founder-director of the Academy of Religion and Mental Health in 1954, Rev. Anderson authored Man's Right To Be Human in 1959.

Brother D. Augustine, F.S.C., chairman of the Sociology department, presents the January Centenary medal to Judge Gerald F. Flood.

Finance department chairman James J. Henry presented the award to February medalist Dr. Karl R. Bopp.

Villanova Philosophy professor James F. Anderson, Ph.D. receives the medal for March from Dr. E. Russell Naughton, chairman of our Philosophy department.

As one of his last official acts in office, Governor David L. Lawrence on January II presented citations to Manhattan and La Salle Colleges saluting their 100th anniversaries. At the half-time ceremony of the annual basketball game (LSC won 78-61) between the two Christian Brothers schools, Brother Daniel Bernian, F.S.C., President, receives the citation for the College. Brother Gregory, F.S.C., President of Manhattan, holds his award.

The R.O.T.C. Drill team performed at halftime of the televised game and was also seen on Phila.'s channel 6.

Around Campus

The Spring term opened with 5100 students and nine new courses in the Day division and five in the Evening.

New Day offerings are courses in Quantum Chemistry, Biochemistry, Physiology, and the writings of Milton. Also added are honors program seminars in Advanced International Relations, Marxism and the Dialectical Tradition, Advanced Accounting, and seminars on Hemingway and Faulkner.

Added to the Evening curriculum are courses in Major American Novelists, Analysis of Financial Statements, Teaching Remedial Reading, and Western Civilization (1815-1863).

A degree program in mathematics, which will be part of the evening school's recently inaugurated liberal arts program is being readied for the fall semester, according to Brother F. Emery, F.S.C., evening dean. More than 150 are enrolled in the new arts program, he said.

CENTENARY LECTURES

The Centennial lecture series, which featured Dr. Mortimer Adler and Senator Eugene McCarthy in the Fall, continued with Dr. William F. Albright on January 30, Steven Spender on March 1 and Rev. Joseph M. Bochenski, O.P. on March 14.

Dr. Albright, emeritus professor of Biblical Archeology at Johns Hopkins University, and former director of the American School of Oriental Research in Jerusalem, spoke on "Oral and Written Tradition."

Spender, British poet and literary critic, who is giving a course this year in modern poetry at Northwestern University, discussed "The Literature of the 1930's."

Father Bochenski, director of the Institute of East European Studies at Fribourg, Switzerland and well-known philosopher spoke on "Recent Developments in Soviet Philosophy."

COLLINGWOOD HONORED

Charles Collingwood, CBS newsman and anchorman for the award-winning "Eyewitness" TV series, received the 15th annual Collegian journalism award at the paper's annual banquet.

The plaque, given annually since 1949 for outstanding public service in the field of journalism," was presented by Brother Daniel Bernian, F.S.C., president of the College.

Collingwood, a veteran newsman with a wide variety of experience, began his career in journalism with United Press (International) in London in 1940. A year later, he joined the CBS News staff—then headed by Edward R. Murrow—and has been a stalwart of the network's news staff ever since. He is perhaps best known as Murrow's successor as host of the "Person to Person" series and most recently, the special "A Tour of the White House With Mrs. John F. Kennedy." He has won Peabody and National Headliner's Club awards.

Past recipients of the Collegian award include Bob Considine (1951); "Red" Smith (1952); Edward R. Murrow (1954); Jim Bishop (1956); David Brinkley (1961), and James Reston, last year's recipient.

DOUGLAS HYDE

Douglas Hyde, former news editor of the London Daily Worker and now lecturer at the NATO Defense College in Paris, was a guest lecturer on February 27. He discussed "The Communist Struggle for Latin America" and called Red

Recently appearing on campus were (I. to r.): Susan Starr and her husband Kenneth Amada, who gave a duo-piano concert on April 3 Odetta and Leon Bibb, featured attractions during "Folk Singers Week"; Basil Rathbone, who offered dramatic presentations from the works of Shakespeare, Poe, Houseman and Conan Doyle; and Eugene Ormandy, the recipient of a Special Centenary medal and a musical tribute on April 5.

Subversion in the area "the easiest job on earth" because of "the appalling social injustices throughout South America."

The Alliance for Progress, he asserted, "is really a question of perhaps too little and too late," but he lauded the Alliance for "some of the best land reform programs any where in the world."

Hyde also asserted:

- Cuba under Fidel Castro "has had a tremendous effect on the morale and thinking of communist leaders throughout Latin America," charging that "the conditions which brought about the Cuban revolution exist all over Latin America."
- Communists still believe in violence as a means toward power, "(Soviet Premier) Khrushchev's policy of coexistence means only that he rejects nuclear war, not violence."
- The "weak links in the West's chain" are Africa, Asia and Latin America, where "semi-colonial and semi-feudal" conditions prevail, and Latin America is "the most promising of the three, with the most immediate prospect of success." He added "the communists expect to create situations such as Vietnam in South America."
- "Catholics everywhere, and the West as a whole, must do all possible to aid Latin America" because "if Latin America becomes communist the world Catholic total will be almost halved."

COLIN CLARK

Colin Clark, Oxford University economist and population expert, told a campus audience on January 23 that the "populations explosion" is necessary for economic growth.

The lecture was sponsored by the Economics department in conjunction with the centennial year celebration. Dr. Clark's topic was "Rates of Economic Growth."

"Population growth," Clark asserted, "is the driving force behind economic growth. Stopping the so-called population explosion in countries like India, will also halt economic growth."

"The U.S.," he added, "instead of grumbling about the post-war baby boom, should welcome it!"

Clark assailed what he called a policy of "growthmanship" in the U.S., defining this as "the fallacy that mere increases in capital expenditures will increase economic growth." Clark claims that "increases in capital and in the labor force are interdependent" for economy gains.

"More capital does mean more production," Clark added, "but the main factors are the 'Three Es'— education, enterprise and effort."

Clark charged that "the Soviet (Union's) economy is falling far behind the U.S., and Mr. Khrushchev knows it." He added that he is "appalled by the readiness of U.S. and European economists to accept the false claim of the Soviet economists."

Distinguished economist Colin Clark (center) with La Salle's economists Dr. Joseph Flubacher and Casimir Ciesla.

Clark, 57, a native Australian, is director of Oxford's Institute for Research in Agricultural Economics. He served as under-secretary of state for labor and industry and held other posts in his homeland between 1938 and 1952, when he was appointed to his current post.

Among Clark's many writings are his "Critique of Russian Statistics" (1939); "The Economics of 1960" (1942), "Welfare and Taxation" (1954), and "The Real Product of Soviet Russia" (1960).

EGAN LECTURES

The final two in a series of nine papers in the History department's Maurice Francis Egan Lecture Series will be delivered on April 25 and May 16.

On the first date Victor Mametey, Ph.D., professor of history at Florida State University, will be the guest lecturer. On May 16 Ugo Donini, of our History department, will conclude the series.

Each lecture considers some aspect of the central topic; "Immigrant Groups and Woodrow Wilson's Peacemaking Policy." The discussions attempt to discover what influence, if any, various immigrant groups exerted on President Wilson's policies immediately following the first World War.

Dr. Mametey will discuss the Slovak-Americans; Mr. Donini, the Italian-Americans.

Maurice Francis Egan, '75 was born in Philadelphia in 1852. After serving as editor of a number of Catholic publications and as a professor of English at the Catholic University of America, he accepted the position of Ambassador to Denmark in 1907. He remained there under three Presidents until 1918. Among his forty volumes was a study of diplomatic Europe during World War I, Ten Years Near the German Frontier.

The lectures are given in the College Union at 8:00 P.M.

THEATRE

The Masque followed its successful presentation of "Death of a Salesman" by launching into rehearsal for its spring musical production "Bye Bye Birdie." The show will open May 5.

Director Dan Rodden will be assisted by his experienced and acclaimed staff: Jean Williams, choreographer; Frank Diehl, music director; Sidney Mac Leod, technical director.

The same staff will assist Rodden with MUSIC THEATRE '63, for which auditions and interviews have already begun.

The eight week season will open on July 3 and will feature productions of "Finian's Rainbow" and "Fiorello."

Last year more than 14,000 patrons attended MUSIC THEATRE '62's productions of "Carousel" and "Annie Get Your Gun."

POLITICAL ROUNDTABLE

The Political Science department sponsored a roundtable discussion on "The Future of American Politics," March 15.

Panelists were: Dwight MacDonald, Associate Editor of the New Yorker, who took the radical position; Frank S. Meyer, a former editor of the National Review, who defended the conservative position; and David Gilbert Smith, of Swarthmore College's Political Science department, who spoke for the liberal element.

Chairman of the affair was Dr. C. Richard Cleary, Chairman of the Political Science department, who introduced the theme of the discussion. The History department's Dr. John Lukacs was cast in the role of moderator-provacateur.

A near capacity crowd in the College Union ballroom enjoyed the lively discussion, particularly the exchanges between MacDonald and Meyer.

Chairman Cleary reluctantly brought to a close the lively audience participation period which followed the panel discussion.

S.A.M. CONFERENCE

The College hosted the seventh annual conference of the Society for the Advancement of Management, Saturday, February 16, in the College Union.

John R. Bunting, vice president of the Federal Reserve Bank of Philadelphia, was the principal speaker at a buffet luncheon at noon. Management leaders from local firms took part in morning workshops on the conference theme, "Management in the Electronic Age," a study of the effects of automation on management, labor and the economy.

Among the guests taking part in the afternoon panel discussion were Donald Lasser, director of economics and research, International Electrical Workers Union; Frederick Hoar, advertising manager for electronic data processing, Radio Corporation of America; Joseph Dolan, area supervisor for the bureau of apprenticeship and training, Department of Labor, and Joseph J. Sprissler, vice president for business affairs at La Salle. Carl Beck, president of the Charles Beck Machine Co., was moderator.

COUNSELING CONFERENCE

Dr. William C. Cottle, of the Boston College Graduate School of Education, was the principal speaker during a counseling conference on February 9.

Dr. Cottle discussed "Professional Orientation of the School Counselor" in the Keynote address at the opening session.

About 300 diocesan high school counselors and administrators attended the conference, conducted by the counseling center under the direction of Dr. Thomas N. McCarthy.

Three symposiums covered the "Professional Approach of the High School Counselor," "Community Resources for Student Development" and "Hearing with the Third Ear."

FACULTY NEWS

Five new members were added to the faculty this semester. Dr. Charles B. Wurtz joined the Biology department staff. The Evening division added John Reardon, Accounting; Bernard J. Vaughn, Economics; Charles A. Moench, Mathematics, and Arthur B. Carey, Marketing.

Francis J. Nathans, roster committee chairman, is acting dean of the School of Business Administration during a semester leave of absence by dean Brother David Cassian, F.S.C.

Henry James and the Dramatic Analogy, a book by Brother C. Joseph, assistant professor of English, was published in March by Fordham University Press.

Three faculty members, Dr. E. Russell Naughton, Brother E. Austin and Claude Koch, appeared on WCAU radio's "Allen Scott Show" on March 6 in a new series of Wednesday shows titled "The Nature of Man." The station is heard in 38 states.

John F. Gallagher, of the political science department took part in WRCV radio's "Jr. Town Meeting of the Air" on April 4.

Gallagher was moderator of the program, dealing with the question, "Is African Nationalism a Breeding Ground for Communism?"

Dr. John J. Rooney, chairman of the psychology department, was publicity chairman for the spring conference of the Personnel and Guidance Association of Greater Philadelphia.

Dr. John Lukacs has been chosen as chairman for the committee on program of the American Catholic Historical Association for 1963. He has also been chosen as an Honors' Examiner for the history honors program of Swarthmore College for 1963.

John F. McGlynn, assistant professor of English died at Veterans Administration Hospital recently. He was 42.

He attended La Salle and St. Joseph's College and obtained his B.A. and M.A. degrees at the University of Pennsylvania.

As an Air Force first lieutenant in World War II, Mr. McGlynn won an Air Force Medal for strafing missions in the China-Burma-India Theater.

COMING EVENTS

Coming events include a concert by the Wissahickon Valley Symphony orchestra on April 16 at 8 P.M. Dance scenes will be staged by the Jean Williams Ballet Company.

William F. Buckley, editor of the National Review and prominent conservative spokesman will speak on "Freedom and the Welfare State" on April 26 a 12:30 P.M.

William F. Buckley

One of the country's freshest and most versatile singing groups, the "Four Preps," will appear in two concerts in the College Union ballroom on May 4 at 7:30 P.M. and 10 P.M.

A calendar of events appears on the inside back cover, together with a listing of the art exhibits which may be seen during April and May in the College Union building.

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS:

"WORDS OF REMINISCENCE, GRATITUDE AND HOPE"

(The following is the principal address given by Brother Daniel Bernian, F.S.C., President of the College, at the Centennial dinner, March 18, 1963 at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel.)

Mr. Chairman, Doctor Braceland, Friend and Alumnus

Your Excellency, Archbishop Krol

Reverend Brother Provincial

Your Excellency, former Governor Lawrence, Presidential Assistant

Your Honor, Mayor Tate

Right Reverend and Very Reverend Monsignori

Reverend Fathers, Venerable Brothers Members of the Board of La Salle College, Members of the Faculty, and of the Alumni

Honored Guests, Ladies and Gentlemen, Student Representatives —

While prolonged oratory is, by common consent, out of place at a birthday party, the celebration of a hundredth anniversary is obviously, a very special occasion calling for at least a few words of reminiscence, gratitude and hope.

Those who do not intimately know, may decide within themselves that my words are really afterall but attempts at oratory. But those who have known the moments of doubt, hardship, anguish, bitterness, joy, success, achievement will feel the emotion which envelopes each general statement. For example, when we say "friends" we cross an illustrious gamut of hierarchy, clergy, lay administrators, members of the press, landscapers, bankers, lawyers, builders — all in their way unselfish and many sometimes self effacing friends.

And so, reminiscence—since this great occasion is, in reality, our tribute to those who have gone before us, to those who would have wished to have seen this day, those unselfish pioneers who labored against odds that would have daunted any but men of simple and fearless faith. It is no easy thing to spend oneself in the onerous labors of tilling and sowing, leaving the joyous work of the harvest to others.

In a very real sense, on this happy occasion, we are basking in the glory largely merited by those who, in the face of a multitude of difficulties, happily witnessed the birth of La Salle and then jealously saw it through its uncertain and awkward years of adolescence. The problems of today would certainly appear to those valiant men as blessings to be grateful for.

On this hundredth birthday we are, above all else, profoundly and humbly grateful.

First of all, we publicly give thanks to a Beneficent Providence Whose help, during all the history of the College and the High School, has been obvious and bountiful; there have been times — and not only in the dim and distant past — when our very survival seemed the effect of God's merciful intervention.

Words are incapable of expressing adequately our thanks to the many Brothers, Professors and other Staff Members whose untiring labors and devoted service have made the College and the High School what they are. Many of these great souls have already gone to their merited reward, but, happily, many others are with us tonight, and this great celebration is, in a special way, a tribute to them.

Our students past and present have merited the sincere gratitude of their Alma Mater, for, in a sense, they are the College and the High School. Their work, their successes, loyalty, have given in the past and continue to provide today whatever of permanent value and true meaning the work of La Salle may possess.

Our friends and benefactors through the years can also call our joyous centenary celebration their own. Without their continued support and generous help there would literally be nothing to celebrate. It is a source of real joy that so many of these great and true friends are with us tonight.

But a school cannot, like a man celebrating his hundredth birthday, merely feel complacent at having survived. At a hundred, among the great colleges and schools of the world, we are still comparatively young. The past fills us with more than wistful reminiscence and sincere gratitude; the dominant note of this great occasion is confident and optimistic hope.

The present, like the past, is replete with challenge and opportunity. The problems we face may be different from those of former days, but they are no less perplexing and trying for all that.

Facing the future, we depend, as did our predecessors, on the help of Almighty God, and humbly hope to merit His continued guidance.

The truly devoted men and women of our Faculty and Staff fill us with unwavering confidence that, in our case, the past is truly prelude.

We are proud of our students as well as of our faculty — our continued quest for excellence is something they not only benefit from, but something to which they make a very real contribution.

And our confidence is strengthened mightily by our growing host of friends whose interest in us, whose generous and unfailing support, encourage us to face our second century with joyous hope.

Finally, we are grateful to all of you whose presence at our Hundredth Birthday Party makes this an occasion to remember. We ask you to add to your congratulations — which we sincerely appreciate — a fervent prayer that La Salle College and La Salle College High School may prove worthy of their glorious past.

In the name of everyone connected with La Salle, it is my great honor to pledge, on this memorable anniversary, that with God's help and yours we will measure up to the awesome challenges of the great country and age in which we live.

And in conclusion, to you, my fellow Christian Brothers, my best wishes for our future and most sincere congratulations for having seen this day together.

WALTERS NAMED BASKETBALL COACH

Robert W. Walters, '47

Robert W. (Bob) Walters, '47, has been named head basketball coach of the Explorers, it was announced on April 8 by Brother Daniel Bernian, F.S.C.

Walters replaces Donald W. (Dudey) Moore, who resigned April 1 after five years at the helm of the Explorers. Moore's teams won 79 and lost 37, during that period.

Walters led the team in scoring for all four years of his varsity career, from 1943 to 1947. A guard, he captained the team in his junior and senior years, sparking the Explorers to a runner-up position in the Middle Atlantic Conference Tournament in the latter campaign.

He was named to the All City team three times, and received All State and honorable mention All America recognition in his senior year.

During the 1952-53 season, he was assistant coach to Ken Loeffler. Before that, he was head coach at Roman Catholic High School for five seasons.

Walters thus becomes the first alumnus to assume the head coaching job since the 1948-49 season when Charles McGlone guided the team.

SWIMMING

La Salle's young and highly inexperienced swimming team did suprisingly well in 1963, finishing with a 10-3 dual meet record and a third place finish in the Middle Atlantic Conference Championships.

Bruce Trainor, the Explorers' outstanding freestyler from Lower Merion, Pa., went undefeated in 19 races in the 50, 100, 200 and 500 yard freestyle events during the regular season.

As a team, coach Joe Kirk's Explorers set 38 school, pool and conference records during the year with Trainor's 15 new marks leading the way.

La Salle defeated Temple, Loyola (Md.), P.M.C., Drexel, Penn, the Merchant Marine Academy, Dickinson, East Stroudsburg, Georgetown and Lafayette, and lost only to powerful Villanova, West Chester and MAC champion Bucknell.

Senior Co-captain Bill Raftery drives for a lay-up in the first round N.I.T. game with St. Louis U. at Madison Square Garden. The Explorers lost a heartbreaker in the dying seconds, 61-60. The game was televised nationally by NBC and broadcasted worldwide through the Armed Forces Network. The loss gave the team a final record of 16-8.

Good performances during the year were registered by captain Phil Ranieri, Gerry Burrows and Dave McDonnell, all of whom will be graduated in June.

Returning next year, however, will be freestylers John Becher, Ken Buyarsky, Bill Conroy, Pat Hogan and Trainor; diver Mike Kennedy, Breaststrokers Joe Dieterle and George Schuncke, and backstrokers Charles Trowbridge and Don Walheim.

BASEBALL PREVIEW

The baseball team opened its 19 game schedule, April 1, at P.M.C., with an optimistic attitude tempered slightly by a few question marks. The Explorers looked for improvement on last year's 11-7 record.

Coach Gene McDonnell, who has compiled a brilliant 45-23-1 record in four previous years at the Explorer helm, was faced with a king-sized question mark regarding the physical condition of ace pitcher Joe McNally, of Philadelphia.

A righthander with a blazing fast-ball, McNally suffered from a sore arm last year, and slumped to a 1-4 record after being 10-1 as a sophomore. The team captain says he feels fine, but McDonnell must wait and see what happens when the regular season gets underway.

With or without McNally, the pitching should be fairly strong with such flame-throwers as Tony Crone, Jim Knauff and Joe Evancich, who was a bellweather of last year's bullpen, finishing with a 5-0 won-loss record and numerous saves.

The other question mark is the catching where McDonnell hopes to replace the graduated Ralph McNally (Joe's brother) with either Frank Gallo, a promising junior, or Steve Clayback, a re-converted pitcher.

Jim Ambrosius, the shortstop who set a college record by hitting safely in all 18 games a year ago, heads the Explorer infield. He led the team with a .421 batting average last year.

At first base, it will be Bruce Wenger (.293) or senior John Smart. Dewey Goetter (.289) will be at second and should combine with Ambrosius to give La Salle one of its best double-play combinations in years. Soph John Spence and junior Jack Farley are battling it out for third base.

Jack Beal, a senior who hit .294 last year will be in center, and soph John Picollo, in left. Right field is still wide open with veterans George Zaharchak and Jim Reich fighting soph Dick Espenship for the starting slot.

Look for a hig defensive improvement in the '63 Explorers. If Gallo or Claybach develop into a solid catcher, La Salle will be extremely strong up the middle, and that usually insures a solid team.

CREW PREVIEW

La Salle's rowing schedule once again will be highlighted by a trip to Florida for three races during the Easter vacation, and, according to coach Joe Dougherty, the Explorers will be going South with a "couple of good, tough crews."

The Explorers have virtually everyone back from last year's varsity boat that finished with a 4-4 record and a fifth place finish in the Dad Vail Regatta. Moreover, there is good talent coming up from the freshmen who took last year's Vail frosh title and finished unbeaten in nine races.

"We are in fairly good shape at this point of the year," says Dougherty, "and we have more depth on our varsity and JV crews than ever before. Of course, it's a big jump from a frosh man to varsity boat, but some of the boys should make it with little difficulty."

The Explorers, captained by Lou Oswald for the second straight year, opened

GRADU-EIGHTS, LA SALLE

Crew has been one of the most successful athletic endeavors in the history of sports at LSC—and Gradu-Eights La Salle means to keep it that way.

As the name suggests, Gradu-Eights La Salle is an organization of alumni oarsmen who rowed the eight oar shells in college competition since the sport was initiated here in 1947.

After a few years of somewhat informal competition, La Salle went to Poughkeepsie in 1950 for the Dad Vail Regatta, the championship race for small colleges or schools which are new in the sport. The first one got away, but La Salle won six of the next eight Dad Vail Championships. This stands as the best record compiled by any school since the D.V.R.A. was formed in 1939.

With this success as a background, the graduate oarsmen who return annually to see the regatta (now held in Philadelphia every year) were not psychologically prime for the years of '59, '60 and '61 when LSC finished out of the money. Losing is no disgrace when you are competing against twenty crews which include powerful entries from Brown, Amherst, Purdue, and Fordham, but something happened in 1961 that caused some alarm among the interested grads.

Two days before the regatta, one of the varsity men was injured, and it appeared that La Salle would have to scratch. Why not put in a substitute, or promote a junior varsity man? Because there was no junior varsity, nor was there a single eligible substitute. Fortunately, the man was able to row, and the crew did fairly well, but the incident focused attention on the declining stature of rowing at La Salle.

Twelve men met on a June evening in 1961 to discuss ways and means of rejuvenating interest in their favorite sport. The formal organization, Gradu-Eights La Salle resulted.

The organization concluded that while the College continued to support rowing, there were not enough candidates coming out. Investigation revealed that freshmen were not sufficiently aware of crew. When they became aware of it, they still did not come out because they were under the impression the boats were filled and there was not hope for a man without experience.

The first task they assumed was to make freshmen aware of crew early and correct erroneous impressions about the need for prior experience.

During Freshman Orientation Week, 1961, the Gradu-Eights set up a crew display in the College Union building and their representatives talked to several hundred incoming frosh. Many were impressed, for the following Spring saw the largest turnout of candidates ever.

Two Gradu-Eight members, Gerry Hipp, '61 and Harry Todd, '60, assisted Coach Joe Dougherty with the freshmen. The organization raised the extra money needed to send a freshman boat to Florida with the varsity.

The freshman won races at Rollins, Tampa and Florida Southern and climaxed their undefeated season with a victory in the Dad Vail Regatta.

Although last year's varsity lost no men by graduation, it appears that several of last year's freshmen will earn seats in the number one boat this year.

If the crew does well this season, it will be due in no small measure to the active support of this group of interested alumni.

the season at home against American International College, April 1. The Dad Vail Regatta will be held on the Schuylkill, May 11.

1963 TRACK OUTLOOK

Veteran Coach Frank Wetzler would like nothing better than to bring another Middle Atlantic Conference track title to La Salle in 1963, especially since the Explorers will be hosting the conference title event in May. It's going to be a difficult task, however, since the league shows its best balance in years.

Moreover, the Explorers are rebuilding after a 1-6 dual meet record last year and a disappointing fourth place finish in the MAC Championships. If the veterans improve and the newcomers develop sooner than expected, La Salle could sneak by Delaware, Temple and St. Joseph's, however.

Look for the Explorer cindermen to be strongest in the javelin and middle distance events; weak in the hurdles, discus and high-jump, and just about average in everything else.

Outstanding individual performances should come from the following: Don McDyre, La Salle's captain, who has been plagued by arm miseries the past two years, should be consistently over the 200 foot mark in the javelin. His is the school's best in this event since the great Olympian, Al Cantello was graduated. Ralph Palatucci and John Kenny also excel in the javelin, giving La Salle a tremendous one-two-three punch.

Paul Minehan, who ran 4:16.2 as a soph, should help considerably in the 880 and mile. He was the 1962 MAC cross country champion and won the IC4A College Division title. Larry Patterson and Pete Volk are strong challengers in the mile and 2 mile events. Patterson did 4:19.7 indoors and will be better.

Art Ernst, a junior, will help in the 100 and 220 if he can overcome leg muscle injuries that have sidelined him the past two years. Dave Murphy and Bill Duryee, a pair of sophomores, have good sprinting potential and will improve with experience.

Other veterans who should score points include Tom O'Hora, 440; Tom McDonnell, 880; Dick Bernhardt, 440 and 880; Marty Stanczak, high hurdles and broad jump; Tony Lambert, pole-vault and high-jump, and Walt Sampson, high-jump.

1963 GOLF PREVIEW

Things are looking up as far as golf is concerned at La Salle. Last year, the Explorers finished with their best record in history (8-3-1), and wound up sixth in their first appearance in the Middle Atlantic Conference Championships.

Dr. Robert Courtney has only one letterman on his team—Jack Stack, a junior from Philadelphia, who scored 21½ points last year.

Stack averaged a sparkling 79 down the homestretch of the 1962 season, with his best game, 77, coming against St. Joseph's.

1963 TENNIS OUTLOOK

"This is as promising a squad that La Salle has had in the last five years."

So said the Explorers' veteran tennis coach Art Condon as he greeted five letterman, as well as some of the most talented newcomers in La Salle's tennis history, when practice started in mid-March.

Since La Salle finished with a disappointing 1-12 record a year ago, things are definitely looking up, especially since Condon is blessed with the depth that has been lacking so often in the past.

Salle Magazine

At Commencement students of the current year's senior class receive their degrees and become alumni of their institution. Although much is said of this change, the general body of alumni have nothing at all to do with the annual ceremony.

This year it was different at La Salle. This year our alumni were honored at commencement through the twelve men who were singled out to be awarded Centennial medals. (p. 4.) It was a great day for our alums, a wonderful way for the College to honor its alumni, and another successful event in this notable year.

We have been cited recently for our overall Centennial program by the American Colleges Public Relations Association (A.C.P.R.A.). Brother Daniel Bernian comments on p. 9.

Charter Week (reported on in the last issue) was the high point of our celebration, but the pace continues.

As will be seen by our Alumni News section, it has been a busy spring for class reunions.

MUSIC THEATRE '63, already highly praised by the professional reviewers in the local dailies, promises to keep things humming during the summer.

A special honors convocation is in the offing for October.

Of particular interest will be the gigantic Centennial Ball now being planned for Convention Hall on November 23.

All the various elements of the College, Alumni Association, Student Council, Evening Division and the R.O.T.C., have pledged their cooperation in this venture.

The magazine is addressed to "Alumni, Students and Friends of the College." Whichever group you belong to, we hope you will join us on the big night at Convention Hall.

This will be my last issue as editor of LA SALLE. It has been a gratifying, if time consuming task.

The relinquishing of this duty, as enjoyable as it has been, will permit me, as Director of Alumni, to devote more time to alumni organization and programs. I will continue to contribute as an assistant editor for alumni activity.

Beginning with the October issue Ralph W. Howard, Director of the College News Bureau and presently assistant editor, will assume the position of editor of this publication.

I have complete confidence that, characteristically, he will throw his time, energy and considerable talent into putting out a magazine of which we all will be proud.

Commencement

LARGEST CLASS GRADUATED ALUMNI HONORED

La Salle College conferred four honorary degrees, presented centennial medals to 12 alumni, and gave degrees in course to a record 700 graduates at the 100th commencement exercise June 4 at Convention Hall.

Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther (Ret.) president of the American National Red Cross, gave the commencement address and received an honorary doctor of laws degree.

Brother Charles Henry, F.S.C., assistant superior general of the Christian Brothers received a doctor of pedagogy degree and was the presiding officer.

Recipients of honorary doctor of laws degrees were Hervé Alfand, French Ambassador to the U.S., and Charles M. Grace, vice-president of Mc Donnell and Company. Pierre Gabard, French Consul in Phila., accepted for Alfand, who was unexpectedly called to the White House that afternoon.

Honorary degrees were conferred by Bro. Daniel Bernian, President of the College, at Commencement, June 4, to General Alfred M. Gruenther, Bro. Charles Henry, F.S.C.; French Consul Pierre Gabard, who represented Ambassador Herve Alphand; and Charles M. Grace.

The deans of the resepective schools, arts and science, business administration and evening, presented the candidates for degrees in course to Brother Daniel Bern-ian, F.S.C., president, who also conferred the honorary degrees. Gerard J. Carpency, of Pottsville, was valedictorian.

Twenty-eight graduates received U. S. Army commissions at swearing-in ceremonies conducted by Col. Jack C. Maldonado, professor of military science. Seven others received U. S. Marine Corps commissions.

BACCALAUREATE

The Baccalaureate Mass was celebrated that morning at the Immaculate Conception Church, Ardleigh and Price Sts., in Germantown. The Rev. Edwin L. Gallagher, pastor of St. Michael's Church, 1445 N. Second Street,—original location of La Salle when founded a century ago—gave the sermon.

Four newly ordained priest alumni served as ministers of the Mass. Rev. William J. Dougherty, C.S.P., '58 was the celebrant; Rev. Paul A. Wiedmann, '56 was deacon; Rev. James J. Martin, '59 was sub-deacon; and Rev. John A. Franey, '56 was master of ceremonies.

Ministers of the Baccalaureate Mass at Immaculate Conception Church were: Rev. Edwin L. Gallagher, who gave the sermon; Rev. Paul A. Wiedmann, '56, deacon; Rev. William J. Dougherty, C.S.P., '58, the celebrant; Rev. James J. Martín, '59, sub-deacon; and Rev. John A. Franey, '56, the master of ceremonies.

ALUMNI AWARDED CENTENNIAL MEDALS

A highlight of the commencement was the presentation of Centennial medals to twelve alumni, as representative of the monthly themes of the Centennial medal program. The citations were read by Brother E. James, F.S.C., Chairman of the Centenary Committee.

Brother F. James, F.S.C., S.T.D., Class of '45, Chairman of the Theology department here at the College, received a medal "For Outstanding Contributions by an Alumnus in the Field of Theology."

Joseph F. Flubacher, Ed.D., Class of '35, Chairman of the Economics department was awarded a medal as "An Alumnus Who Typifies the Ideal of the Christian Educator."

Claude F. Koch, Class of '40, author and associate professor of English at La Salle, was given his medal "For Outstanding Contributions by an Alumnus in the Advancement of Christian Art in Letters."

James T. Harris, Class of '48, Secretary General of the Institute of Law and Public Administration, Republic of the Congo, was cited as "An Alumnus Who Exemplifies the Highest Christian Traditions in Promoting Community Welfare."

The medal was accepted for Harris by his father, James T. Harris, Sr.

Rev. James Berna, S. J., Ph.D., Class of '41, Director of the Jesuit Institute of Social Order in Bangalore, India, was awarded a Centennial medal "For Outstanding Contributions by an Alumnus in Helping an Underdeveloped Nation." The medal was received by Father Berna's brother, Edwin F. Berna of the Class of '28.

Rev. Ellwood E. Kieser, C.S.P., Class of '50, writer-host of the Paulist Fathers' TV series: Insight, received a medal "For Outstanding Contributions by an Alumnus in the Use of Modern Communications Media to Promulgate Christian Principles."

Francis J. Braceland, M.D., Sc.D., Class of '26, Psychiatrist-in-chief at the Institute of Living in Hartford, Conn. and professor of Clinical Psychiatry at Yale University, was awarded his medal "For Outstanding Contributions by an Alumnus in Advancing the Christian Concept of the Worth of the Individual in the Field of Mental Health."

Joseph Schmitz, Jr., Class of '20, President of the Universal Dye Works, Inc. and a member of the College Board of Managers, was recognized as "An Alumnus Who Exemplifies in an Outstanding Manner the Christian in Industry."

John A. Guischard, Ph.D., Class of '38, Chairman of the Modern Languages department, was commended "For Outstanding Contributions by an Alumnus in Promoting the Study of Modern Languages."

Henrik W. Shelly, M.D., Class of '39, physician of Chincoteague Island, Virginia, was cited as "An Alumnus Whose Selfless Contributions to the Practice of Medicine are in the Highest Christian Traditions."

Martin J. Devine, Class of '50, head of the Experimental Lubricants Branch of the Aeronautical Materials Laboratory, Naval Engineering Center, was honored "For Outstanding Contributions by an Alumnus in the Field of Research Science."

A. William Salomone, Ph.D., Class of '38, Woodrow Wilson Professor of History at Rochester University, was awarded his Centennial medal as "An Alumnus who Exemplifies the Christian Sense of History."

Following the twelve medalists, a special citation was read by James I. Gillespie, Alumni President, announcing the establishment by the Alumni Association of a John J. Finley memorial award. It will be presented annually, in honor of the distinguished alumnus of the Class of '24, who served the College and the Association so well up until his death last year. Its first presentation was to the family of John Finley and was accepted by his son, Peter, of the Class of '53.

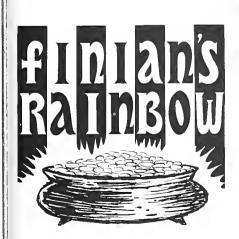

Alumni recipients of Centennial Medals at Commencement exercies were: Dr. Joseph F. Flubacher, '35; Edwin F. Berna, '28 (for Rev. James Berna, S.J., '41); Dr. Francis J. Braceland, '26; James T. Harris, Sr. (for James T. Harris, '48); Dr. John A. Guischard, '38; Rev. Ellwood E. Kieser, C.S.P., '50; Dr. Henrik Shelley, '39; Claude F. Koch, '40; Joseph Schmitz, Jr., '20; Bro. F. James, F.S.C., '45; Martin J. Devine, '50; and Dr. A. William Salomone, '38.

After a highly successful initial season of musical comedy on campus last summer, MUSIC THEATRE '63 opened on July 3 with Finian's Rainbow.

The perennial favorite will run through July 28 and will be followed by Fiorello, August 3 through 25. Performances are at 8:30 P.M. Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Sunday, and at 6 and 9 P.M. Saturday. All seats are reserved at $3 each.

Last year, in its premier season, the area's first college-sponsored professional summer stock company, Music Theatre '62, did Carousel and Annie Get Your Gun and played to more than 14,000 patrons.

July 3 - 28

Dennis Cunningham portrays the whimsical leprechaun in "Finian's Rainbow," initial presentation of MUSIC THEATRE '63, July 3 through 28.

Both productions this year will be staged again by managing director Dan Rodden. Jean Williams is choreographer and Frank Diehl is musical director. Technical direction and sets are by Sidney MacLeod; Ray Pentzell designed the costumes.

Starring in Finian's Rainbow are Robert Bolsover, Pat Cronin, Dennis Cunningham, and Judy McMurdo, all featured performers in MUSIC THEATRE '62. Bolsover, a young baritone who won wide acclaim for his work in Carouscl and Annic last summer, plays Woody Mahoney. Cronin appears as Finian McLonergan, Miss McMurdo as his sister, Sharon, and Cunningham is Og, the leprechaun.

The cast is composed of a unique combination of professional and college talent. A dozen local colleges and universities are represented. The principals are complimented by a singing and dancing chorus of 32 and a 10-piece orchestra.

E. Y. Harburg and Fred Saidy wrote the book, Burton Lane the music and Harburg the lyrics for the musical, which has among its now-famous tunes "How Are Things in Gloca-Morra," "Old Devil Moon," and "If This Isn't Love."

Pat Cronin will portray the colorful mayor of New York during the 30's in Fiorello.

August 2 - 25

Around Campus

Awards for "distinguished teaching" were presented on May 15 to four professors at the annual Founder's Day dinner, at the Four Chef's Restaurant, in Mayfair.

Some 700 seniors and their families attended the traditional dinner, which marks the feast day of St. John Baptist de La Salle, founder of the Christian Brothers and patron of the college.

Thirty-three academic prizes were presented to seniors for "outstanding academic achievement" by Brother Gavin Paul, F.S.C., vice-president for student affiairs, and twenty-seven seniors were given membership in Alpha Epsilon, the alumni association's honor society.

The faculty awards, made possible by a $3000 grant from the Christian R. and Mary F. Lindback Foundation, were given to the Rev. Roger Balducelli, O.S.F.S., assistant professor of theology; Dr. Richard P. Boudreau, associate professor of French; Claude F. Koch, associate professor of English and a novelist, and Brother E. Patrick, F.S.C., associate professor and department chairman of English.

Awards of $1000 each were presented to Father Balducelli, Dr. Boudreau, and Koch. A medal was given to Brother Patrick, who may not retain a stipend.

Father Balducelli, who earned a degree in scriptural studies at the Biblical Institute in Rome, joined the college staff in 1960. Koch has published two novels, Island Interlude and Light in Silence, and his latest work, A Matter of Family, will be published this fall. Brother Patrick is also editor of La Salle's literary magazine, Four Quarters, and has been department chairman since 1952. Boudreau earned master's and Ph.D. degrees from Princeton.

Winners of major student awards were James H. McCormick, for the "best scholastic record in the day school," Patrick J. Cronin, for a "good scholastic record . . . (while having) done the most for the public welfare of La Salle," and Joseph T. Koczur, for student government and campus political affairs achievement.

The European tour left Phila. International airport on June 19, will return July 16.

SUMMER SESSIONS

Three new courses and three special programs highlight the 1963 day and evening summer sessions, it was announced by Brother F. Lewis, F.S.C., director.

Classes started Monday, June 24. First session classes continue through July 26. Second session is July 29 to August 30.

Some 60 courses in 17 areas of study are offered, among them three new courses: "Differential and Integral Calculus," "History of the U.S. and Pennsylvania," and "Marriage and the Family." The evening school offers courses in economics, English, philosophy, and theology.

Special programs to be offered this summer include a Pre-Seminary Latin Institute and a Reading Development Program, both of which started June 24, and a Workshop in Teaching Elementary School Science, which opens July 1 and continues through August 2. Some 65 nuns from diocesan elementary schools will take part in the Science Workshop, in which attention will be given to reading and literature in science, and the new emphasis in elementary school science.

LOYALTY AWARDS

Brother E. James, F.S.C., chairman of La Salle College's centennial committee, and Patrick J. Cronin graduating senior, were honored by the Alumni Association on May 31 at the annual Graduate Welcome Dance at the Philadelphia Rifle Club.

Also honored were Charles V. Kelly, associate professor of English, and evening division senior James J. Kenyon, who received certificates of merit.

Cronin, who was the star performer in the college's undergraduate theatre group for four years while majoring in French, and Brother James, also assistant treasurer at the college, were given the alumni's Class of '56 "Loyalty Awards" for their "extraordinary time and effort in behalf of the college."

Kelly was honored for his service as director of La Salle's student organizations commission. Kenyon was president of the Evening Division's student congress.

RECENT GRANTS

La Salle College is one of ten U.S. colleges and universities sharing $250,000 in grants by the Ford Motor Company Fund.

Brother Daniel Bernian, F.S.C. said that the $25,000 grant is an unrestricted one.

The Ford Motor Company Fund is a non-profit corporation, which aims to assist educational, scientific and charitable organizations. It is not affiliated with the Ford Foundation.

A $10,000 National Science Foundation grant for laboratory equipment was announced May 10 by Dr. John Penny, chairman of the biology department.

Bro. Daniel and Ford's Kooi

The grant will be used to complete purchase of scientific equipment for the department's physiology laboratory in the Science Center.

Earlier awards of $10,000 by the Smith, Kline and French Foundation and $5,000 by Merck, Sharp and Dohme contributed to the laboratory, which is scheduled to open this fall.

Dr. Penny also announced that the Atomic Energy Commission has awarded the College a $6800 grant for nuclear materials

The grant will be used for the purchase of radioactive isotopes for use in radiobiology laboratories in the Sceince Center.

Materials will be available for laboratory studies during the spring semester of 1964.

CENTENNIAL MEDALS

Rev. George Christian Anderson, founder and director of the Academy of Religion and Mental Helath, received the seventh in a series of monthly centennial medals on April 17 at a dinner in the College Union Building.

Dr. Anderson was honored by the psychology department for his "distinguished leadership in fostering understanding and cooperation among men of religion, science and the healing professions." Dr. John J. Rooney, chairman of the department, presented the medal.

The medalist, ordained as Episcopal clergyman in 1933, founded the Academy in 1954. He has served as rector of several Episcopal churches in Philadelphia and was chaplain at Swarthmore College. He is the author of Man's Right to be Human (1959) and is a consultant to Harvard University Divinity School, Loyola University (III.), and Yeshiva University. He attended the University of Pennsylvania, Union Theological Seminary, Oxford University, and Columbia University.

Raymond W. Welpott, vice-president and general manager of WRCV and WRCV-TV and executive vice-president of NBC's Owned Stations Division, received the eighth medal on May 2.

Following the luncheon presentation, a panel discussion was presented by the Americans for the Competitive Enterprise System, Inc. (ACES). John Wanamaker, chairman of John Wanamaker, Inc., chaired the panel which discussed "The Obligation of American Business."

Welpott was honored by the industry department for "his outstanding contributions to the improvement of education and industry in our community." Dr. Bernard B. Goldner, chairman of the department, presented the medal.

The medalist was vice president and general manager of WKY and WKY-TV in Oklahoma City before joining NBC in June, 1958. Later that year, he was named to his present post at WRCV and last year was appointed a network vice-president. He spent 19 years with General Electric Company before entering the broadcasting field.

Other members of the seventh annual ACES panel were John Haas, executive vice-president of Rohm and Haas Co.,

New Dorms: Olney Gardens

Thomas Walton, vice-president, Insurance Company of North America, and Charles Thomas, secretary, Standard Pressed Steel Co. Among the sub-topics were automation, corporate profits, "featherbedding," and corporate mergers.

APARTMENT BUILDING ACQUIRED FOR DORM

La Salle College has purchased the Olney Garden Apartments, 5711-29 Wister St., Brother Daniel Bernian, F.S.C., president, announced recently.

The college plans to convert the twostory structure into a student dormitory. The purchase price was given as $235,-000.

The building contains 28 two-bedroom apartments, a one-bedroom unit and two commercial spaces. It is located one block west of the college, on the northeast corner of the intersection of Wister and Chew Sts.

Planned to house approximately 100 students, the apartments will be La Salle's sixth residence hall. The fifth, a new, twin-unit structure, was opened last fall. Some 450 residence students now live on the campus.

"Ya Gotta Be Sincere," croons Conrad Birdie (Nick DeMatteo). "Bye, Bye Birdie" was the most successful show in the Masque's history.

Counseling Center's John Smith at Parents' Meeting.

COUNSELING CENTER MEETS PARENTS

The Counseling Center, as an innovation in its program for Freshmen, is inviting the parents of the students to a two hour evening conference after their sons have put in a full day of testing and orientation.

In small groups, the parents are informed about the College and about their sons. The son's skills are interpreted for them and they are advised how they might help him adjust to college life.

TEMPLE HONORS BRO. DANIEL

Brother Daniel Bernian, F.S.C, president of the College was awarded the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws at Temple University's 77th Annual Commencement on June 13, in Philadelphia's Convention Hall.

Brother Daniel was presented for his degree by President Judge Charles Klein of Philadelphia Orphans Court and chairman of the Temple University Board of Trustees. The degree was conferred by Dr. Millard E. Gladfelter, Temple president.

A native of Baltimore, Brother Daniel is a graduate of Catholic University and received his Master's degree from the University of Pennsylvania. He received a Doctor of Philosophy degree from Laval University in Quebec, Canada, in 1952.

Receiving honorary degrees with Brother Daniel were British writer and scientist C. P. Snow, and his wife, author Pamela Hansford Johnson; and Pennsylvania Governor Wiliam W. Scranton, Maj. Gen. William C. Westmoreland, superintendent of the U.S. Military Academy at West Point; Dr. Louis Finkelstein, chancellor of the Jewish Theological Seminary, New York, and Dr. Josef Nordenhaug, general secretary of the Baptist World Alliance.

FATHER WEIGEL

"Christians must unite or eventually perish," Rev. Gustave Weigel, S.J., prominent theologian, told a capacity audience in the College Union theatre recently.

Father Weigel, is consultant on Christian unity to the Second Vatican Council. His talk was sponsored by the Intercollegiate Social Action Council of Philadelphia.

"Christian impact on the secular world is steadily diminishing," he asserted, citing "the growing populations in non-Christian nations" and that "the situation of Christians is no longer privileged; in one-half of the world it is underprivileged."

The result, the Woodstock College (Md.) theologian concluded, is that one day the myriad of Christian denominations will have to unite for survival.

"Religions (alluding to membership growth) say 'We've got it good.' Well, the railroads thought that once, too," Father Weigel asserted.

Father Weigel claimed "there is no valid excuse for the division and multiplicity (of religions)," but added that the day when all churches are united "can not yet be seen."

"The goal of the Vatican Council," he said, "is not organic unity, but to meet (non-Catholics) as brothers . . . (and) take into account the mind and position of our separated brethren to heal the wounds of the past."

Catholic doctrine can not be changed, he stated, but Catholics must "reformulate our dicta that has caused offense in the past... (and) created needless misunderstanding." It must "be so expressed that it is clearer to the men of our time," he added.

WISE NAMED HEAD ENDOWMENT FOUNDATION

Randolph E. Wise, Commissioner of Public Welfare in Phila., has been elected President of the La Salle College Endowment Foundation, succeeding Robert W. Walters.

An honorary alumnus of the College (LL.D., 1957), Wise was educated at Boston College, where he received his

R. E. Wise

B.A. in 1935 and his M.S. in Social Work in 1938. He has also done graduate work in public administration at the University of Pennsylvania's Institute of Local and State Government.

He has been football coach at his alma mater and hockey coach at St. Joseph's College, Phila., but his chief background is in probationary work in the New York and Philadelphia areas. He became Chief Probation officer for the U.S. District Court of Eastern Pa. in 1941.

His career was interrupted by World War II, in which he won three bronze stars as a naval gunnery officer in the European, Mediterranean and Asiatic theatres of operation. After the war, he returned to his position with the District Court until 1949, when he was named Director of Parole of the National Council on Crime and Delinquency.

In 1952 Mayor Joseph S. Clark appointed him Commissioner of the Department of Public Welfare, the position he now holds.

Brother Daniel Bernian, F.S.C. (center), president of La Salle College, received an honorary doctor of laws degree from Temple University June 13 at Temple's 77th commencement exercises at Convention Hall. Dr. Millard E. Gladfelter (right), president of Temple, conferred the degree, and President Jude Charles Klein, of Philadelphia Orphans Court, sponsored Brother Daniel for the degree.

In the current Centennial Fund Drive, Wise has been co-chairman of the Special Gifts Committee. He was also instrumental in obtaining a $4,000 grant from he Philadelphia Foundation for the Soiology department to study "a changing neighborhood."

FACULTY NEWS

"U.S. Might," a 10-program series produced by WRCV-TV in Philadelphia in conjunction with La Salle College, will be seen in three major cities across the nation, Monday through Friday from 6:30 to 7 A.M. (local times).

The series features illustrated discussions on various industries by Dr. Bernard B. Goldner, chairman of the Industry Department and director of the School of Creative Thinking.

Already aired in Philadelphia and New York, the series will be seen in Los Angeles, July 15-26 on KNBC-TV, Channel 4; in Chicago, August 12-23: WNBQ-TV, Channel 5; and in Washington, D. C. September 9-20: WRC-TV, Channel 4.

For the 15th consecutive year, Brother Azarias, F.S.C., Chairman of the Education department, has been elected Secretary-Treasurer of the Liberal Arts Colleges Association of Pennsylvania.

Brother E. Anthony, F.S.C., assistant professor of education, has been re-elected President of the secondary school division of the National Catholic Education Association for the 1963-64 academic year.

The Rev. Mark Heath, O.P., College Chaplain, gave the Baccalaureate address at College Misericordia in Dallas, Pa., Sunday, May 26, and took part in a workshop at Catholic University, June 13-14. He delivered a paper entitled "Religion on Campus" at the workshop, which dealt with Selected Problems in the Administration of Higher Education.

Two faculty members will be participating in institutes sponsored this summer by the National Science Foundation. They are Brother E. Mark, F.S.C. (Notre Dame — Gamma Rays; Cornell-Relativity) and Brother Gregorian Paul, F.S.C. (New Mexico -Biophysical Chemistry).

THE AMERICAN COLLEGE PUBLIC RELATIONS ASSOCIATION

in recognition of meritorious service to higher education confers upon the 1963 National Award for Distinguished Achievement in Special Projects and Programs

La SALLE COLLEGE

H Russell Bentyer
H RUSSELL BINTZER
PRESIDENT

Byen Massey

In my fall Centennial Message, I paid tribute to the devoted members of our faculty, past and present, whose efforts brought La Salle proudly through the years to the Centennial celebration.

Although those who contributed to the success of the celebration number in the hundreds, or even thousands, it is perhaps most fitting at this time to give public recognition to eight men who were awarded Centennial Medals for their outstanding contributions to the program.

The medalists, who were honored at the luncheon which followed the Centennial Mass, are: Brother E. James, F.S.C., chairman of the Centennial Committee and assistant treasurer of the College; Brother Gavin Paul, F.S.C., vice president for student affairs; John L. McCloskey, vice president for public relations; Joseph J. Sprissler, vice president for business affairs; Brother Fidelian of Mary, F.S.C., vice president for academic affairs; Rev. Mark Heath, O.P., College Chaplain, and Ralph W. Howard, director of the News Bureau.

Recent events prompt special attention to those members who contributed so unselfishly of their time and effort in making the centennial not only a happy personal experience, but thereby also bringing national and regional recognition to the celebration.

I refer to three awards conferred upon the College by the American College Public Relations Association at the group's annual convention in Chicago last month. La Salle received three citations at the meeting, which was attended by more than 1,000 representatives of some 500 colleges and universities.

The principal "Distinguished Achievement Award" was given by the Association for the College's entire Centennial Program. Our esteemed companions as winners were Austin, Barnard, Gustavus Adolphus and Regis colleges and Oregon University Medical School.

The ACPRA also honored the La Salle News Bureau, which received two Middle Atlantic District citations under two categories. The Burean was cited for its contributions toward the College's Centennial Supplement in the Philadelphia Inquirer and Bulletin, and for the story on La Salle which appeared in the Sunday Bulletin Magazine, February 17, 1963. Mr. John J. Keenan, of the English department, is to be commended for his major contributions to the Supplement. Both stories were honored as "interpretive education stories," one prepared by the News Bureau itself, the other in cooperation with a magazine or newspaper writer.

All of those who made either great or small contributions to the centennial program will, I hope, share my pride in this recognition, which was given competition totaling some 850 entries in all categories and was given to only five other Catholic colleges or universities.

Egan Lecture Series:

IMMIGRANTS AND WOODROW WILSON'S

The Maurice Francis Egan lecture series, nine papers which considered the impact of the various immigrant groups on Woodrow Wilson, was sponsored by the History Department during the past academic year.

Participants were: Joseph P. O'Grady, La Salle; Louis L. Gerson, University of Connecticut; Otaker Odlozilik, University of Pennsylvania; Dennis McCarthy, La Salle; Austin J. App. La Salle; J. Sandor Cziraky, La Salle; Morton Tenzer, Brandeis University; Victor Mametez, Florida State University; Ugo Donini, La Salle.

The results are here summarized by Joseph P. O'Grady.

O'Grady is an Assistant professor of History and an alumnus, Class of '56. He has an M.A. from Notre Dame University and is working on his doctorate at the University of Pennsylvania.

There are those among us who hold that in a democracy "public opinion determines fundamental policies of diplomacy." The corollary belief is that, if one is to understand the workings of foreign affairs, it is necessary to consider what the people thought about what was happening at a particular juncture in history to discover what pressure they brought to bear upon the government to change its course."

That this has been the belief of many Americans, at least since 1900, is evident from the study of American diplomatic history.

Yet is it possible that this could be an erroneous belief? Could it be that diplomacy in a democracy suffers from the same pressures as diplomacy under the autocratic totalitarian regimes of our own century, or the old absolutist governments of the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries? Obvious differences do exist, the result of the radically political philosophies, but these might exist only on the surface. When one ventures into its depths, he might find the same forces at work, regardless of the form of government.

The fundamental factors of geography, national self-interest, and the whims and personalities of the policy makers that so conditioned international life in the last two centuries might well be the fundamental determinates of diplomacy in our own age. If this is true, the choas of the ages in which we live might very possible be the result of emphasizing the veneer and ignoring the underlying forces that shape policy.

In an effort to analyse the truth of the proposition that public opinion does serve as the fundamental determinate of foreign policy and its corollary, the belief that the people should be consulted in the formative stage of policy making, the History department sponsored a lecture series in honor of Maurice Francis Egan, Class of 1875, on the general topic "Immigrants and Woodrow Wilson's Peacemaking Policies, 1918-1920." Eight scholars, four from our own campus and four from universities as far removed as Massachusetts and Florida, studied individual immigrant groups, their respective reaction to Wilson's program, and their attempts to revise that program.

The particular topic was selected for a number of reasons, all of which worked to make it ideal for the purpose in mind. In the first place Wilson himself (at least on the surface) was one of the greater exponents of the belief that people should control the movement of political events. Secondly, the peace settlement, the talk that preceded and followed the settlement, and the high expectations that resulted directly from the high sounding phrases of Wilson's speech excited Americans from all walks of life to voice their opinions on the various issues involved. In other words. the times, the issues, and Wilson's words created a desire on the part of Americans to discuss issues of diplomacy.

Thirdly, in this air of excitement, the immigrants of America with their split loyalties for the old country and the United States felt that they had greater cause to be concerned since Wilson proposed to redraw the map of Europe. As a result, they attempted to influence policy in 1918 to a greater extent than at any time before or since, or least in terms of the number of groups actively working for specific ideas and prompting specific solutions. Both before 1918 and since, individual groups have been interested at isolated times and on isolated issues, but never were so many interested at the same time on virtually the same issues.

Finally, the value of this study to discover the influence of public opinion upon foreign policy was greatly enhanced by the fact that Wilson and the Democratic Party did not command a safe and sure majority of the electorate in 1918. As a result politicians of both parties were interested in tieing as many voters to their respective parties as possible and these professionals would not hesitate to use foreign affairs to assure victory at the polls. The excitement of the peace settlement and the politician's belief that immigrants would vote as a block caused these groups to become prime targets for this kind of political appeal.

These things created an ideal atmosphere in which pressure groups, such as these immigrants, could influence policy. To the extent that they did, the basic assumption that public opinion is the fundamental determinate of foreign policy is true.

To the extent that they did not, it is false.

Of the immigrant groups studied, the most numerous and the most politically powerful were the Germans, the Irish and the Italians. One would naturally surmise, on the basis of their obvious and well recognized power, that these groups would influence Wilson's policies more than any other group. Yet, as the research progressed it became quite evident that this was not so, that those most likely to succeed failed to a greater degree than their politically less fortunate friends.

For instance, the Germans, as Professor Austin J. App so ably proved, had suffered greatly after the United States had entered the war against Germany. Americans, including many in Wilson's administration, persecuted as traitors their fellow citizens of German descent for their pro-German propaganda prior to April 1917. As a result of this constant harassment, German-Americans feared to criticize anything that Wilson did; in fact, they virtually denied themselves the right to act as a typical pressure group within the democracy. Although deeply interested in the question of peace, they refused even the attempt at intervening and rather relied upon Wilson's good will.

The Irish, on the other hand, although they followed the same anti-British, pro-German policy of the German-Americans prior to 1917, did not deny themselves the right to campaign vigorously for Irish self-determination after Wilson's Fourteen Point Address. They were able to do this because of Ireland's long history of oppression at the hands of British lawmakers, which played to America's love of the freedom fighter, and because of their political power with the Democratic Administration.

However, this support from the public, in addition to their numerous attempts to apply pressure through rallies, resolutions to Congress, conventions, telegrams to Wilson, and personal intercession with him, failed.

The President did not believe that he could raise the Irish issue in any official manner without destroying Anglo-American solidarity and, since this was fundamental to the success of his plan to apply popular legislative machinery to the international world, Wilson would not permit the Irish-Americans to influence his position.

Thus, this one powerful group, politically speaking, failed to influence Wilson, while, as Professor Dennis McCarthy indicated, the most difficult group to define, the British-Americans seemed to be most successful.

Their only interest was in Anglo-American solidarity, yet the success of their attempt to cement this must be seen as the result of the desire of an anglophile administration to see it cemented. This came first, and British-American propaganda merely feasted on fertile soil.

Meanwhile, according to Professor Ugo Donini, the Italians held their meetings and passed their resolutions, but they were not able to reach Wilson directly. In fact, the questions which troubled Italian-Americans were solved in Paris without even the benefit of the Italian Foreign Minister. (Orlando left the conference table in late April). Professor Donini declared that this Italian-American failure resulted merely from their inability to produce a prominent figure close to the administration, either among refugees or the Italian-American community itself.

While the more populous and, therefore, potentially more powerful groups failed to influence Wilson, other immigrants much less formidable in this respect, gained great concessions. Although Professor Otakar Odlozilik of the University of Pennsylvania, showed that Wilson's acceptance of the Czech cause was the result of events in Europe and not the myth that Thomas Masaryk convinced Wilson to do this while visiting the United States, he did admit that whatever influence the Czech community did have resulted not from the public speech rallies and resolutions, but from the personal contact that Representative Charles Sabath and Richard Crane of the State Department had with Wilson.

Manrice Francis Egan, '75 was born in Philadelphia in 1852. After serving as editor of a number of Catholic publications and as a professor of English at the Catholic University of America, he accepted the position of Ambassador to Denmark in 1907. He remained there under three Presidents until 1918. Among his forty volumes was a study of diplomatic Europe during World War I, Ten Years Near the German Frontier.

In much the same manner Professor Victor S. Mamatey in his paper on the Slovaks and Ruthenians confirmed Professor Odlozilik's findings. This was particularly true with the Ruthenians as John Zatovick led this relatively obscure group to Wilson.

This question of personal contact with Wilson also appeared very clearly in the case of the most successful of the East European groups, the Poles. Here Professor Louis L. Gerson traced the line of influence from Ignacy Jan Paderewski to Colonel House to Wilson. Their degree of success can easily be seen in the Fourteen Point Address when Wilson called for an "outright and unqualified commitment to an independent Poland." The personal approach was obviously more successful than the typical public opinion approach and it was this way because Wilson, ignoring the normal sources of public advice, did what he felt was best. Much of this, I feel, depended upon the last person to reach him on a given issue.

This particular aspect most clearly appears in the lecture, delivered by Morton Tenzer, on the Jewish-American. As a result of World War I, the Jewish community in America shifted its support from an anti-Zionist postition to a pro-Zionist one since they saw the war as an opportunity for the creation of a Jewish state. The rallies, fund campaigns, etc. aroused public support but the real measure of Jewish success depended upon the fact that the virtual dictator of the American Zionist movement was a close friend of Woodrow Wilson. Louis Brandeis convinced Wilson to support the creation of Palestine even though it violated his principle of selfdetermination. Few Jews lived in that area in 1918-19 and, if the question were put to the Arabs, few would have voted for such a solution. Wilson, with Brandeis at his ear, supported the Zionist position on the mere basis of historical claims, two thousand years old.

Even from this rather short summary of the various findings it would appear evident that one can justifiably conclude that public opinion in the typical sense of the term did not greatly influence American policy in 1918-19. Such policy was in reality the creation of Wilson's mind and to influence it meant to contact that mind. Those who could reach Wilson were successful, and their degree of success was determined by the intimacy of the connection.

The Germans were not permitted to talk because it was within the national interest to prevent criticism from that source. The Irish failed and the British succeeded because it was within the national interest to maintain Anglo-American friendship.

Wilson endorsed the changes in Central Europe on the basis that, by solving the disputes in that area, he could help to contain Germany. His personal belief, in other words, his whim and his personality, directed policy more than any other factor.

Finally, in the Jewish case, he accepted Brandeis' position mainly because geography had removed the area beyond the limits of American policy.

There are those who contend that under the old system individuals ruled foreign policy. It might be true in our own age of the democratic masses. Individual, rather than team achievement highlighted La Salle's 1962-63 athlectic program which recently ended with an overall 58-54-2 (.510) record in nine varsity sports.

Five of the teams (basketball, swimming, tennis, track and crew) finished with winning records. The golfers broke even, but the soccer, cross country and baseball teams finished with losing slates.

Last winter was, by far, the most successful season of the year for the Explorers as their basketball and swimming teams combined for a 26-11 record and second and third place finishes, respectively, in the Middle Atlantic Conference.

This was quite an improvement over the autumn record compiled by La Salle's soccer and cross country squads (2-15-1) and considerably better than the 30-28-1 record of the five spring sports.

TRACK ROUNDUP

Coach Frank Wetzler's young and promising cindermen enjoyed a fine comeback this year, finishing with a 4-2 dual meet record which included upset victories over the University of Pennsylvania (first win over Quakers in history) and Temple.

In May, the Explorers hosted the Middle Atlantic Conference Championships for the first time since 1954, finished a strong third and produced three individual conference champions—captain Dan McDyre, javelin; Paul Minehan, mile, and Bill Duryee, 440. Both Minehan and Duryee set new league records in their specialties.

Delaware won the conference team title and became the first non-Philadelphia school to do so since 1951 when Lafayette reigned. La Salle and St. Joseph's had dominated the league for the past 12 years.

Besides winning individual titles, Minehan finished second in the two mile event and Duryee came in fourth in the 220 yard dash. Other scorers for the Explorers included Tom O'Hora, of Scranton (4th in the 440; 5th in the 220); Tom McDonnell, of Philadelphia (4th in the 880), and Larry Patterson, Briarcliff, N. Y. (3rd in mile; 5th in 2 mile).

Also: Dick Sherwin, of Lansdowne, Pa. (3rd in 120 yard high hurdles); Marty Stanczak, Philadelphia (5th in the broad jump); Ernie Harper, Brooklyn, N.Y. (5th in High jump); Art Mackin, Philadelphia (4th in pole vault); George Sutor, Philadelphia, (4th in the shotput) and Ralph Palatucci, Norristown, (3rd in javelin).

La Salle's freshmen also got into the championship act, sweeping the conference frosh medley relay title. The team of Fred Uelses, Jim Higgins, Joe Ganz and Phil Duffy, won the event in 3:37.2 as the Explorer yearlings finished third in the team standings. Dick Daly, of Philadelphia, picked up a point by finishing fifth in the frosh mile run.

Minehan, a junior from Philadelphia's Cardinal Dougherty High, established himself as the greatest distance man in the school's history by breaking his own school mile record frequently throughout the season. His best effort was 4:09.6 at the first annual Metropolitan Invitational Meet, at Villanova.

The hard-working Minehan, who had taken the M.A.C. and IC4A (college division) cross country titles in the fall, La Salle's Paul Minehan leads the field en-route to a new Middle Atlantic Conference mile record during the Championships at McCarthy Stadium, May 11. Following close behind is Delaware's Lee McMaster and La Salle's Larry Patterson, who finished second and third, respectively. Jim Tozar, of St. Joseph's (right), faded before the finish and did not score.

also set a new McCarthy Stadium mark of 47.8 while defeating Temple's Aces, Frank Roselione and Don Council in the 440, and became the first man to defeat a Temple sprinter since 1958.

In one of his outstanding achievements during a season replete with such feats, Duryee followed up his individual 440 win in the M.A.C.'s with a tremendous 47.8 anchor in the mile relay to make up half of a 30 yard deficit and nip St. Joseph's for second place.

Besides individual record-breaking performances by Duryee and Minehan, La Salle's cindermen set school records in four relay events, the mile, two mile, sprint medley and distance medley.

Frank Walsh, Bill Barry, O'Hora and Duryee combined for a 3:18.3 clocking in the mile relay at the IC4A's. McDonnell, Pete Volk, Patterson and Minehan did 7:50.0 in the two-mile relay at Quantico. Duryee, Dave Murphy, John Mullin and Minehan turned in a 3:30.5 in the sprint medley at the Penn Relays, and McDonnell, Duryee, Patterson and Minehan did 10:07.6 in the distance medley at Quantico.

Since McDyre was the only senior on the 1963 squad, look for the Explorers to be serious conference contenders next year. They should also improve on their eleventh place (tie) in the IC4A's.

BASEBALL ROUNDUP

Outstanding individual performances by outfielder Jack Beal, shortstop Jim Ambrosius and pitcher Joe Evancich, among others, highlighted an otherwise disappointing year for La Salle's 1963 baseball team.

Coach Gene McDonnell's Explorers wound up with a 6-10-1 overall record and a 3-5 mark for a seventh place finish in the Middle Atlantic Conference, La Salle's worst baseball record since the 1950 squad finished a 4-10.

Beal, a senior from Philadelphia's Cardinal Dougherty High, led the Explorers in hitting with a .356 average, and tied teammate Bruce Wenger (.344) for the team leadership in hits with 21. Wenger, a first baseman from Souderton, Pa., batted two more times than Beal.

Ambrosius, (.328) a junior and 1964 captain-elect from Philadelphia's Father Judge High, went hitless his first nine trips to the plate this year, but went on a blistering .385 pace after that. He finished as the team leader in RBI's (14), extra base hits (8), doubles (4), and tied infielder John Spence for the lead in bases-on-balls (16).

Second baseman Dewey Goetter, (.308), of Lansdale, led the team in home runs (4) and total bases (37).

Evancich, ace relief pitcher from La Salle High, finished the year with the only winning record on the pitching staff (4-1), the best E.R.A. (3.06), the most appearances (12 of 17 games) and most innings pitched (46).

Evancich wound up his college career with an outstanding 10-1 record with his only loss coming in a 14 inning 7-6 heart-breaker at Temple, April 27. He was also a big winner in the classroom, compiling a 3.75 index (perfect is 4.00) as an Economics major.

Explorer pitchers completed only four games this year with the following notaable performances: Evancich, a six-hit, 9-2 win over Haverford; lefthander Tony Crone's four-hit, 11 strikeout performance in a 4-3 victory over MAC power Gettysburg, and Joe McNally's

McNally, who has slowly been recovering from a sore arm, wound up the year with a 1-2 record in six games. The eight-hitter during a 3-2 win over Penn. speedy righthander was unable to regain the form that carried him to a 10-1 record and the Most Valuable Player Award in the Southern Division of the M.A.C., as a sophomore. Last year he slumped to a 1-4 record.

One of La Salle's losses, a 10 inning, 12-10 defeat at the hands of Delaware resulted in the first official protest in the history of the M.A.C. League officials upheld the protest, concerning catcher's interference, but the game was not replayed since it had no bearing on the final league standings.

In the Middle Atlantic Conference, Ambrosius took R.B.I. honors with nine, was fourth in batting with a .400 average and made the league's all-star team. The Explorers took the conference team batting title with a .284 average, but lacked the pitching and defense to make a run for the title won by Temple. The picture looks brighter for next year with all key players except Beal and Evancich returning.

GOLF ROUNDUP

The Explorers enjoyed a fairly successful season on the links by splitting even in twelve matches, but suffered somewhat of a letdown in the Middle Atlantic Conference Championships and finished ninth.

THREE COMEBACKS

Dan McDyre

In 1960, three of the most promising athletes in La Salle's history embarked on their varsity careers. For basketball star Bill Raftery, baseball ace Joe McNally and javelin star Dan McDyre, the future was brightly filled with All-American expectations.

Unfortunately all three followed up brilliant sophomore campaigns by suffering crippling injuries that threatened to wreck their athletic careers. Fortunately, each enjoyed a comeback this year and bowed out in a blaze of glory before graduating as a team captain.

Raftery was a three sport All-American at St. Cecelia's High, Kearny, N. J. He led La Salle's basketball team in scoring (392 points) as a sophomore despite a mysterious back ailment that hampered his play considerably. It wasn't until the following December, 1961, that the star guard's injury was diagnosed and he underwent an immediate operation for removal of a slipped disc.

Many doubted that he would ever play again. But Raftery was able to come back this year to become La Salle's second leading scorer with 322 points. He helped spark the Explorers to the school's first post-season tournament appearance since 1955 and was later drafted by the New York Knickerbockers, of the National Basketball Association.

McNally was tabbed as an outstanding major league prospect after a brilliant sophomore campaign. The speedy righthander was 10-1 that year, with his only loss coming on an unearned run in relief. He was the overwhelming choice for the Most Valuable Player Award in the Middle Atlantic Conference.

Before the 1962 season got underway, McNally came down with a pitcher's most-feared malady — a sore arm. His once mighty fastball became a shade of the past; his flawless control went awry and McNally ended the year with a disappointing 1-4 record in seven games.

Although his arm still isn't as strong as before, McNally was able to come back and pitch extremely well at times this year. His best game was a 3-2 win over tough Pennsylvania when he went the distance and scattered eight hits. He finished the season with a creditable 1-2 won-loss record, and, at last report, was a consistent winner in the Penn-Del League, a fast semi-pro loop, in his native Philadelphia.

McDyre, a former Camden Catholic High great, developed so fast in the javelin throw as a sophomore that he was consistenly out-distancing the soph performances of La Salle's former All-American and Olympian, Al Cantello. It appeared that McDyre, himself, would be throwing in the Olympics soon.

Unfortunately, arm miseries caught up with McDyre at the end of his sophomore year, and a brilliant career seemed ended when he was unable to throw the spear any appreciable distance in 1962.

After a good rest and the patient handling of coach Frank Wetzler, McDyre slowly improved his throws each time out this Spring. By the end of the season he was throwing so well that he won the Middle Atlantic Conference and IC4A individual titles and became the first Explorer to win an individual championship in the latter event since 1958.

McDyre plans to give up javelin competition for awhile. The recently-commissioned second lieutenant left for active duty with the Marine Corps a few weeks after graduation.

A pair of heart-breaking losses to St. Joseph's in dual matches (10-8 and 9½-8½) and triangular match defeats at the hands of Villanova and Penn and Haverford and Drexel spoiled what could have been La Salle's most brilliant golf season ever.

The 1962 Explorer squad still stands as the school's best with its 8-3-1 record and sixth place in the MAC's marking the only winning year in the school's history.

It appeared that the 1963 group was going to tear that record to shreds when they ripped off four straight wins to start the season. West Chester, Phila. Textile, Swarthmore and Muhlenberg were beaten with comparative ease before St. Joseph's ended the streak.

Golf coach Bob Courtney does have the consolation of knowing that everyone except part-time performer Ralph Dages, of Palmyra, N.J., returns next year. The list of experienced vets include Frank Booth, Collingdale, Pa.; Bert Dacey, Staten Island, N.Y. Charles Robino, Wilmington, Del.; Dave Seiders, Reading; Fred Spadaccino, Bridgeport, Conn.; Ray Zoladz, Trenton, N.J.; and captain Jack Stacy, Philadelphia.

1963 TENNIS ROUNDUP

Coach Art Condon was blessed with just the right amount of youth and experience to produce a 9-7 record, marking the first winning season in La Salle's tennis history.

Sparking the Explorers again was captain Phil Sullivan, of Abington, Pa., who went undefeated in singles play for over half of the campaign.

Sullivan was one of five seniors who wound up their collegiate careers. Others, all who will be hard to replace, include Ashley Angert, of Philadelphia; Tom Huggard, of Silver Springs, Md.; Jim Joyce, of New Castle, Del., and Mike Rea, of Collingdale, Pa.

Condon will have a solid nucleus of four lettermen to build around next year, however. John Canney of Philadelphia, Frank McNally, of Yonkers, N. Y., Paul Naughton, of Monmouth, N. J. and Paul Schoenberger, of Plandome, N. Y., all showed promise in 1962.

CREW ROUNDUP

La Salle's 1963 crew finished with its first winning record in two years (5-3) and won the annual Penn A. C. Trophy by defeating arch-rival St. Joseph's and Drexel—a pretty good year to most observers.

But to coach Joe Dougherty's veteran oarsmen it was a bitterly disappointing season because the Explorers were eliminated from the finals of the Dad Vail Regatta, symbolic of small college rowing supremacy, and had to settle for a second place behind Rollins in the varsity consolation event.

Marietta, which had defeated the Explorers in a dual race two days earlier, won the 'Vail Championship. Georgetown was second, finishing ahead of Amherst, Wayne State, St. Joseph's and Drexel, in that order.

After opening the season at home with a win over American International College, the Explorers made their annual Florida excursion and split in a pair of races. They defeated Florida Southern, but lost to Rollins after the opening race of the tour—against Jacksonville—was cancelled due to extreme winds.

Then came a victory over Fordham, a loss to Georgetown, the conquest of the Penn A. C. Trophy over St. Joseph's and Drexel, and the loss to Marietta winding up the regular season.

The Dad Vail Regatta marked the end of college rowing careers for six seniors including capable captain Lou Oswald. Others included Bill Feaster, George Shanks, Mike Mullen, Joe Sweeney and cox-swain Eddie Clark. All hail from Philadelphia.

LA SALLE'S UELSES NAMED TO U.S. TRACK AND FIELD TEAM

La Salle's outstanding pole-vaulter John Uelses earned a spot on the U.S. track and field team that will tour Europe for four meets, including one with Russia, this summer, by finishing a strong second at the National A.A.U. Championships, in St. Louis, June 21.

Uelses, who just completed his sophomore year at the College, is the first man to break the 16 foot barrier in the pole vault. Since his record-breaking feat early in 1962, the height has been cleared almost 60 times.

Uelses cleared 16' 4" at the A.A.U. Championships to finish second to Washington's Brian Sternberg. The first two finishers in each event earned a spot on the United States squad.

Uelses, who was born in Germany and reared in Miami, Fla., currently resides in Philadelphia. He attended Alabama

Alumni News

—Jim McDonald

The Spring of the year is the time when college alumni associations all over America swell their ranks with the addition of yet another graduating class. It is also a time when alumni return in large numbers to their alma maters, observing class anniversaries with reunion celebrations.

La Salle College Alumni Association has added a new, record breaking (684 graduates), and accomplished class. As for alumni reunions, this has been the busiest Spring in memory.

First let's introduce the Class of 1963.

THE CLASS OF '63

Gerhard C. Gerhardi received a Woodrow Wilson Foundation Fellowship for 1963-64. A French major with a 3.81 index, he plans to use his fellowship at Yale.

Peter F. Lang, who majored in mathematics, was awarded a Danforth Foundation Fellowship. Lang is the third Danforth recipient in as many years and the only Philadelphia area student named by the foundation this year. He will study at the University of Chicago.

Gerhardi is the fourth La Salle student in the last five years to be named a Wilson fellow. Three English majors received honorable mention in the Wilson competition and have accepted assistantships as follows: Frank J. Battaglia, Duke University; Joseph W. Beatty, Johns Hopkins U.; and James H. Mc Cormick, Univ. of Pennsylvania.

Raymond Kerollis has accepted a Research Assistantship to Loyola University. George Kugler has been awarded a teaching assistantship to the University of Notre Dame. Kerollis' assistantship is in Biochemistry and Kugler's is in Instrumental Analysis. Robert Pietrangelo has been awarded and accepted a teaching assistantship in Chemistry at the Drexel Institute of Technology.

In addition to Gerhardi in the department of Modern Languages, Robert Zercher has accepted a grant from N. D. E. A. to study French at U. of Kansas. He was also awarded assistantships at the U. of Minnesota and the U. of Iowa. Leroy Donahue received an assistantship in French from the U. of Iowa, Joseph Myers, an assistantship in Spanish from U. of Kansas, and Samuel Zeoli, an assistantship in French from the U. of Kansas.

Scholarships in Law were received by Gerald J. Carpency (U. of Penn.), William A. Garrigle (Boston College), Frank X. Gindhart (U. of Penn.), Dennis P.

Magovern (U. of Penn.), Joseph E. Mc Grath (U. of Penn.), Louis M. Natali (Villanova), and Joseph A. Oliver (Notre Dame).

Joseph Altopiedi will attend Adelphi Univ. under a Social Work grant. Howard G. Becker will study Political Science at Penn State. Robert B. Byrnes and Eugene C. Cerceo will do advanced work in Chemistry—Byrnes at Temple and Cercea at Villanova. William E. Cooney will go to Purdue for Psychology. Patrick Cronin will study Drama at Tulane University.

James A. Dalton will study Economics at Boston College. James C. Davidheiser, German at the U. of Pittsburgh. Joseph M. Evancich will work in Economics at Stanford. Joseph B. Fahy, Social Work at Bryn Mawr.

James M. Joyce and Richard W. Lafferty both received grants to attend the U. of P. next year—Joyce in Physics; Lafferty in Government. William A. Mayor will study Math. at Purdue and James C. McBrearty, Economics at the U. of Illinois. John W. Mesunas will continue his French studies at Villanova U. Charles E. Quirus will study English at Duquesne.

Michael M. Rea will study Physics at Lehigh; Anthony S. Scavillo, French at Catholic U. John J. Schmieg will go to Loyola U. of Chicago for Chemistry; Joseph M. Speakman, Northwestern for History. A. Francis Summerlin will study Sociology at the U. of Pennsylvania.

Frank P. Testa will attend Purdue to continue in Math. Anton Vishio will pursue the Classics at Ohio State U. Joseph F. Wetzell will study French at the U. of Kansas. Francis W. White will go to Notre Dame for Political Science.

Our sincere congratulations to these (and all others we may have missed) who have received fellowships, scholarships and assistantships from various Universities and foundations. Congratutulations to the entire Class of 1963 and welcome to the La Salle College Alumni Association.
